Jane Melby & RC Black In Famous Top Last Chance American Semifinals Qualifier

By Tanya Randall

With 192 entries, the Last Chance American Semifinals Qualifier, held with The Richest Dinosaur, January 29-31 in Glen Rose, Texas, was one for the record books. The largest qualifier of the year, paid 20 places, and most important, took 19 riders to the American Semifinals in Fort Worth, Texas, next month.

Former National Finals Rodeo qualifier Jane Melby and RC Black In Famous ("Pickles"), owned by Chuck and Lisa Nelson, took top honors with a 14.650 to earn $4,320.

The champion was a reluctant entry, only begged to do so by her daughter and fellow NFR qualifier Cayla Small.

"Cayla asked me if I would enter the qualifier," Melby explained. "I said, 'Cayla, my horse is green and Pickles isn't quite ready. Why do you want me to enter the qualifier?' She said, 'Because I don't want to go to the Semifinals by myself!' So, I entered."

Pickles had been in Melby's barn for about three months. Although the mare had won nearly $40,000, Melby believed the mare needed to get a half-second faster to be competitive everywhere.

"This particular horse would drop on the frontend and take too many steps in a turn," Melby explained. "So, I worked on getting a three-step, snappy turn without necessarily having to slow down to make it."

Melby, who currently trains out of Wilson, Oklahoma, mainly worked on teaching the mare speed control.

"I wanted her softer in the mouth and thinking 'Whoa' on her own before the turn," she said. "I probably rode her in a different bit every day, just constantly lightening her up. I also worked on speed control so she understands if I touched the reins she needed to back down. If I walked fast, then she had to walk slow. If I trotted fast, then she'd have to trot slow. If I loped, then she backed down to a trot."

The weekend prior, Pickles won the 2D, but Melby could feel the mare was starting to put things together.

"Every place I took her I was making ground on the feel that I was after," she said. She felt it too on her first run at Glen Rose on Friday. "I was eighth, one out of the money (in the Derby). I thought, 'You know, on the feel of what I had on Friday's run, if I can get what we're after, we can make a half second, and that's basically what we did.'"

Melby also knew from her Friday run that she needed to bring the mare in closer for the Qualifier.

"The day before she leaned before in her turns which I had never felt her do before, so I knew I had to pinch her in there tight, so she had no room to lean," she said. "By putting her in a little tighter, it also placed her pivot foot right."

She knew when Pickles turned the first barrel on Saturday night, all her hard work was paying off.

"How she finished and left that first barrel was what I had really been working on," said Melby, who also won the Derby and finished second in Saturday's Open with the run. "She would take an extra step on the backside and not power out as strong. When I felt her place that pivot foot right and power out of that turn, I thought, 'Game on! Go!'"

In that winning run, Melby felt Pickles feel a lot more like her mother, RC Back In Black ("Beauty"). The 17-year-old daughter of Ninety Nine Goldmine carried Melby to the NFR in 2011 and is on her way to becoming one of the leading producers in the industry.

“Before I ran they played ‘Back In Black,’” she said. “I thought, ‘Oh my gosh! They always played that when I ran Beauty.’ I just remember petting her on the neck and saying, ‘P Beauty, let’s go!’ She does have a lot of the same feel as Beauty, but she doesn’t quite have that strong reach in the front end. The more I ride her the more she feels like her.”

Now both Melby and her daughter who rides Slick N Black, by Slick By Design out of Beauty, will be running half-sisters at the American Semifinals.

While Small picked Slick By Design for her baby out of Beauty, Melby’s son Colton is responsible for Pickles.

“He picked Famous Gold Coin because he wanted a copper penny,” Melby explained. “Famous Gold Coin was known to throw some copper colored buckskins. It was black and he sold it when it was a day old.”

Melby wanted to thank her daughter for talking her into entering, the Nelson’s for allowing her to ride Pickles, and God.

“The Good Lord had his hands in this because I never should have had that horse. I shouldn’t have entered. I sure didn’t expect to win, so He must have plans for me,” said Melby, who also has an NBHA 1D World Championship and an International Pro Rodeo title as well as her two NFR appearances.

“It’s kind of funny, someone had sent me a video Bluebonnet had made of me back in 2014. In that it says I’d like to make the finals three times. Anybody can do it once, but could you do it three times on three different horses. Cayla always asks if I’ll try to make the Finals again and I always say, ‘It takes the right horse. You don’t get to pick if you make the Finals or not. If you get the right horse, you’ll make the Finals.’ So maybe the Good Lord has plans for me that I didn’t know about.”

Coming Out Swinging – Jolene Montgomery & VF Backed N A Corner Top Richest Dinosaur Futurity

By Tanya Randall

Leading futurity rider Jolene Montgomery left The Richest Dinosaur, held January 29-31 in Glen Rose, Texas, with nearly $17,000 in her pockets.

The Purdon, Texas, trainer topped the $10,000-added Richest Dinosaur Futurity with VF Backed N A Corner (“Freddie”), owned by Dave and Lori Zabel, to win $7,741. She also finished third in the Futurity aboard Canyons Moon Light for $4,079 and rode her homebred In Tha Beginning to a $2,929 ninth-place finish.

Montgomery says Freddie is “ungodly talented.” “He’s so fast and leaves a barrel so hard,” she said. “He kind of makes me feel like the monkey riding the border collie! I lose a stirrup and kiss his ears at least once every run! He’s hard to stay in the middle of! He’s such a cool colt. He tries so hard but has zero self-preservation! If he gets out of position, he doesn’t care, he’s still going to try no matter what.”

Montgomery first saw the gelding when Riley South was riding him in the warmup pen at the 2019 Pink Buckle in Guthrie, Oklahoma. His breeder Danny Ray of Victory Farms had consigned the 2-year-old, by Born Ta Be Famous out of Curiosity Corners, by Silver Lucky Buck, to the Pink Buckle Sale.

“I thought, ‘Man, that’s a good looking colt. He looks like an athlete,’” she recalled of the half-brother to 2012 WPRM World

Champion Perculatin and 2020 Old Fort Days Futurity Champion VF Cream Rises. “So, I looked him up and saw he was out of Curiosity Corners. I knew who she was but I didn’t know her breeding that well.”

Montgomery contacted the Zabels about the gelding. “They looked at his picture and Lori had run a Born Ta Be Famous and really liked him, so we bought him in the sale for $14,000. I’m surprised we got him so reasonable. He wasn’t a bigger colt and a lot of people are looking for bigger colts right now. And, he was just sorrel, plain sorrel,” she chuckled.

She said South had 20 to 30 rides on Freddie, so her husband Kerby put another 30 days on him before she started his barrel training.

“He took right to the pattern,” she said. “At first I couldn’t get him really correct but as we went on he wanted to work so hard. He clocked up way earlier, like way before I was asking him to. He was trying to clock on the pattern at Glen Rose in June (of his third year). I tried to back off but he had found his speed. Obviously, things fell apart for a while. In June I was like, ‘He’s my slot horse.’ In August, I couldn’t make the pattern! Needless to say, he did not get picked for a slot. I knew he had the talent I just had to put him back together.”

Although Freddie ran at both BFA Juvenile the OKC Rookie, his breakthrough event was the Come & Take It Futurity in Bryan, Texas, over New Year's weekend. Freddie was the reserve champion in both the futurity and slot race, earning more than $11,000.

"He's getting it all figured out," noted Montgomery, who wanted to thank her farrier J.O. Duke, veterinarian Don Lee of Double X Equine, her husband Kerby, sister Haylee Layman, intern Shian Blackburn and Courtnie Young.

FUN FACT:

Champion trainer Jolene Montgomery was the breeder of her ninth-place horse In Tha Beginning. She had trained, ridden and won on the mare's sire JL Dash Ta Heaven, her dam Chicados Bully, her maternal sire Chicados Cash and her maternal granddam Return Of The Bully.

Incidentally, Montgomery also trained and ran Guys Canyon Moon, the sire of her third-place horse Canyons Moon Light, owned and bred by Bear Creek Quarter Horses.

DAM DOMINATION:

When VF Backed N A Corner won the Richest Dinosaur Futurity in Glen Rose, TX over the weekend he flashed the talent his dam, Curiosity Corners has consistently produced.

According to Equistat, before this most recent winner; Curiosity Corners sits at $1.284 million in earners. The most famous colt by Curiosity Corners is of course Perculatin, better known as Latte, who was the 2012 World Champion with Mary Walker and went on to earn over $1.042 million at rodeos. Latte is by Dash For Perks.

The second high earner for Curiosity Corners is Eddie Stinson daughter, VF Cream Rises who was the 2020 Old Fort Days Champion and has earned $174,216 so far in her career. Another Eddie Stinson daughter out of Curiosity Corners, VF Im That Kinda Gal was a consistent futurity money winner as well winning $43,000. And of course Latte's clone, Ditto was Reserve Champion of The Patriot Futurity.

To The Right? Or Left?

By Tanya Randall

Lefties—horses that take the left barrel first—are a lot more common than they used to be. In one round at the 2020 NFR, five out of the 15 horses went left. A lot of horses get switched to the left, but an increasing number are starting out their careers that direction.

So how do you know if you should go left or right? What are the reasons that you would change? Here, Barrel Racing Report caught up with Craig Brooks—the master of lefties if you ask his fellow futurity trainers—and first-time NFR qualifier Jill Wilson to gain some insight on when it's right to go left.

Flat Or Round?

Craig Brooks often knows before he ever starts a horse on the pattern which direction he plans on going to the first barrel. His decision is based on the horse's movement in either direction—which is flatter, meaning they're more likely to plant a pivot foot, and which is rounder, meaning they're holding their shape and moving forward.

"A lot of times when I bit them up in the roundpen, I can tell which direction is their flat side and which direction is their round side," he explained. "I bit them up to the left and ask them to move forward. If they're flatter that way, they'll usually take a step forward and then roll around, take a step and roll around. If it's more their round side, they take a step and drift to the fence and stay on the fence with natural shape."

Another clue is how they ride.

"Say you're loping down the center of the arena and you have them shaped to the left and you ask them to move to the right, like a 45 degree angle, usually their flatter side, they'll pop into the opposite lead," he explains. "The rounder side, they'll hold that lead and lope away for you."

Generally, the flatter direction is going to be his first barrel, more of a half turn, and the rounder side will get the two fuller turns.

"They turn the first barrel and almost fall back and then they'll catch that lead going across to the second and they'll be able to hold that lead on the backside of the second barrel when they finish. They'll be able to hold that lead when you pick them up to go to the third instead of swapping that lead."

Brooks said it's not as though having a round first barrel and two flatter turns won't work—sometimes it's quicker, he says—but it makes it difficult to stay clean at times. When you're trying to win the big money in the averages at futurities, trying to stay clean is imperative.

"I think that's something that you have to fight a lot if you're going the direction that's not the most natural for them. Say you have a horse that turns the right barrel first really round and they want to hold that right lead all the way across the pen. When the swap to the left lead right at the second barrel, they drop. I think that's really difficult to straighten out. If it's more natural for them to hold that shape, it's easier for them to turn a full turn than a half a turn."

That's not to say that Brooks doesn't work on rounding his horse's flat side either. "I'm not saying that my horses that are flatter that I can't shape them up and have them hold it, but when you go fast, they go back to what's natural for them. You can help them and you can manipulate it, but you really can't take that out of them. It's going to be what it is."

There are times that Brooks will take the rounder barrel first too. Take SR Easin Ta Heaven, who started her career winning a round of the BFA Juvenile to the left and finished her futurity year to the right as the OKC Futurity Reserve Champion.

"When I started her, I knew she was flatter to the right than she was to the left. I went to the left with her because she couldn't keep her hip up underneath herself. When you asked her to go round, it was more of a floppy-type move. So at least I could get her to stick her leg (on her flatter direction) at the second and third. Then as time went on she got very flat behind the second and third. It was almost like she was pausing. That's when I flipped her back around."

Brooks said the main thing is to give the horse the most opportunity with what's natural to them.

"I always tell people I throw a ball with my right hand. I can throw a ball with my left pretty decent, but if you ask me to throw the ball through a hoop for a million dollars I'm going to throw with my right hand. I try to do that for the horses too. I'm not going to be so hard headed to make them go the direction that most people want to go. "When it's a curse to one direction, it's usually a blessing to the other. I have a lot of people tell me, 'You must really like a left-handed horse.' I couldn't care less what direction they go; I just like a good horse."

A New Perspective

Lean Mean Blue Dean was 12 when Jill Wilson switched the gelding to the left. She'd been running the gelding to the right since she got him as a 5-year-old, and they had success that direction. In fact, the year Wilson decided to make the switch the pair had qualified for both the United Professional Rodeo Association Finals and the Texas Circuit Finals.

"The reason I switched him was because I was hitting the second barrel A LOT!" she said. "We weren't getting deep enough past it because he was cutting in a little too early. We just needed a few inches."

"In his defense, I think switching to the left fixed me as much as it fixed him. I think we both had developed bad habits. I think I was cueing him and not knowing it. I was dreading it. He was dreading it. It was a struggle. We were still winning and making great runs, but it was just get around THAT barrel and you're good. It just got to where it felt like I was hitting it more than I wasn't."

The straw that broke the proverbial camel's back was hitting barrels every round of the UPRA Finals.

"I asked Jane Fambro what should I do?" she recalled. "I've been nice. I've been not nice. We've been to the vet. I've tried every tactic—slow work, no work, everything I could possibly think of. I had no other options because my bucket was empty! She said, 'Have you thought about changing him to the left?'"

Wilson's first thought was Fambro was crazy. She wasn't opposed to switching directions because she had done it successfully with her previous horse for similar reasons. This particular mare cheated the left turn but would also go by the first barrel to the right.

"I switched her to left for a few runs and then went back to the right and it fixed all my problems," she recalled.

With Blue Dean though, Wilson thought he was too old and too successful to flip. After a few weeks of dwelling on it, she finally called Fambro and told her she was going to try it.

"We had talked about it and thought I would just be working him to the left at home a few times, but not permanently keep him to the left, just to kind of shake things up and confuse him. But it just stuck. By the second afternoon of slow work, I could just tell. He caught on super quickly. I took him to a little jackpot and my first run was in the 2D. The next day we were in the 1D. A week or two later we went to the Circuit Finals to the left."

She has a go-round buckle to remind her of the year.

"It was a game changer for us," Wilson said. "My next few runs I came out of the arena with a smile on my face. Maybe we won money. Maybe we didn't. It just wasn't a struggle. It wasn't a fight. It was fun again. It was a very refreshing change for us."

HEADIN' FOR HOME

by Sherry Morrison // Triple M (Mike Morrison Ministries)

In case you didn't know, chickens aren't the most athletic of creatures. Yet today, I saw one of my chickens doing a balance beam act on a large, arched log in my front yard. She started at the bottom and swayed all the way to the top, using her little chicken arms for balance. Now, I'm not sure what she thought she was doing or even the why of it, but she was giving it her best effort. She could have used those same chicken arms and flown up there effortlessly. Saved the time. Saved the energy. She chose the long, hard path.

Our prayer life can be like that. We can do the, "PLEASE GOD, PLEASE GOD!" prayer, or "HELP ME JESUS!" is another favorite. But really what we want is RESULTS! If we want results, we pray the ANSWER, not the PROBLEM!

If you think God doesn't know you have needs, read Phil. 4:19. Your prayer is, "Thank you Jesus that you meet my needs..."

If you don't feel good, your prayer is, "Jesus bore my sicknesses and diseases and by His stripes, I am healed." 1 Pet. 2:24.

See that? Praying the answer helps our faith. When we know that God hasn't left anything out of His provision for us, we will fight to keep the devil from stealing from us.

Let's get off the balance beam of doing it our way and soar up to the answer, using the Word of God to get there FAST!

Mike and Sherry Morrison pastor "Church at the Barn" in Gillette, WY. They also travel to other areas ministering at barrel races, ranches, rodeos, churches and home Bible studies.
