Stephenson & Magic Moon Lark Win Title

By Tanya Randall

The blood of leading barrel horse sire Darkelly took the top two spots at the Utah Horse Council's Salty Dash Futurity, held March 17-19 at Salt Lake County Equestrian Park in South Jordan, Utah.

Futurity Champion Magic Moon Lark, owned and ridden by Stacie Stephenson of Blackfoot, Idaho, is a loud bay, tobiano Paint gelding by Darkelly. Reserve Champion Famous Dark Horse, owned and ridden by Vauna Walker, is by Dash Ta Fame out of Cody and Paige Hyde's Darkelly mare Show Me Your Hyde.

Stephenson called her gelding "a once in a lifetime horse."

They were the picture of consistency in South Jordan. They were fourth in the first go with a 15.677 and third in the second with a 15.750. The victory was worth $2,257 of the $18,440 total purse of which $5,000 was added.

"He just ran really consistent, just did his job," she said. "He's pretty business-like."

Stephenson bought Magic in the fall of his third year through Jeremy Price, who was racing the gelding for his breeders Bosen Land & Livestock of Lewiston, Utah.

"He was raced around my area by someone I knew," she explained. "When they were done running him, he came up for sale, so I bought him."

In addition to a proven barrel horse sire, Magic was loaded with proven barrel racing genetics on his maternal side. His dam Roll The Moon, a paint, is a granddaughter of Paint racing great and noted barrel horse sire Easy Jet Too. Roll The Moon is out of the Quarter horse mare Bankers Moon, who is by the legendary Moon Lark and out of a Roll The Cash daughter.

"He's just a natural turner, so he was really easy to train," Stephenson said of the 5-year-old gelding.

Magic made his debut at the All-In Barrel Race in Las Vegas during the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo. His performance there told Stephenson that she really had something.

"He ran in the 2D," she said. "They were his very first runs and it was a crazy loud pen. I was kind of wondering if I had made a mistake. Both of my colts handled it really well. I thought, 'Well, if they can handle this, they're probably going to do really great.'"

At the Arizona futurities, Magic ran well, posting 17 second runs on the WPR Standard Pattern and winning amateur futurity money on every trip. He and Stephenson also won the Amateur Futurity at the Greg Olson Memorial.

"After I left Arizona, he kind of got faster and faster," she said. Stephenson, 46, grew up running barrels. Her mother still competes at age 73. She and her husband, J.D., own and operate Still Waters Counseling in Blackfoot. Their weekends were spent with their four

Harry Vold: Jan. 29, 1924 – March 13, 2017

ProRodeo Hall of Fame stock contractor Harry Vold passed away March 13. He was 93.

Vold, who was known as the “Duke of the Chutes” passed away in his sleep at his home in Avondale, Colo.

“My dad enjoyed rodeo more than anyone I know,” said Kirsten Vold, Harry’s daughter. “The PRCA meant a lot to him. He dedicated his life to the sport of rodeo and he believed in everything those four letters (PRCA) stood for. He passed away in his sleep like every good cowboy should.”

A memorial service will take place at 1 p.m. (MT) March 20 at the ProRodeo Hall of Fame in Colorado Springs, Colo., 101 Pro Rodeo Drive.

Vold, while operating the Harry Vold Rodeo Company, was chosen PRCA Stock Contractor of the Year 11 times (1982, 1987-96), which is tied for the most selections with Stace Smith ProRodeos.

Vold is one of only two stock contractors to provide animals for every National Finals Rodeo, which has been held annually since 1959.

“He’s made a lot of friends and done a lot of things in rodeo,” Kirsten said. “I would say he had no regrets with how he spent his life because there’s nothing he would have rather have done than spend it in a rodeo arena on the back of a black horse, and he got to do that for many, many years.”

Vold was born Jan. 29, 1924, in Edmonton, Alberta. Vold tried his hand at bareback and saddle bronc riding, but he never had any ambition to be a full-time cowboy.

His interest was in the horse business and auctioneering, then in rodeo. His early exposure to stock contracting came with some of the greatest names in the business – Leo Cremer, Lynn Beutler and Harry Knight.

Vold’s breeding program, primarily with bucking horses, has led to seven animals being voted top bucking stock of the year – two of which have been repeat winners. Over the years, Vold stock has appeared at every major rodeo in the United States, and several in Canada.

“My philosophy is to put on the very best quality rodeo with top stock and top cowboys – wholesome family entertainment,” Harry once said.

Vold was inducted into the ProRodeo Hall of Fame in 1994 and was named Legend of ProRodeo in 2009.

“I would hope people would remember that he was a true, loyal and honest friend,” said Kirsten, who will continue to run her father’s rodeo company.

Ari-Anna Flynn & Tobys Poco Misterio Fly in Mercedes

By Tanya Randall

Texas Circuit Finals Champion Ari-Anna Flynn and Tobys Poco Misterio topped the $2,088 at the Rio Grande Valley Livestock Show & Rodeo in Mercedes, Texas, March 16-18. Flynn, Charleston, Ark., picked up $2,088 at the $5,000-added rodeo in deep South Texas.

Flynn started her weekend in Goliad, Texas, at Friday morning slack for the County Fair PRCA Rodeo and was up in the performance that night in Mercedes. On their first run that day, Flynn didn't push Toby hard because she expected him to fire since the run was in slack.

"He normally fires really hard in slack because there's not as much for him to look at, but he actually flip-flopped," noted Flynn, who was celebrating her 24th birthday that day.

After he coasted through during the slack at Goliad, Flynn knew she was going to have to ride Toby harder during the performance at Mercedes.

"He blew my mind with how good he worked. He clocked so good," she said. They won the rodeo by 2/10ths.

Toby is the older of two full brothers that Flynn rides. Both geldings are by Quick Little Lena out of the Sticks An Stones mare Ms Janes Stone. Toby is a 13-year-old buckskin, and Sunnys Two Socks ("Hollywood"), a palomino, is 10.

"I've been running him more here lately," said Flynn, noting that Hollywood has been battling some soreness issues. "He's normally the one I run indoors."

Toby is the less campaigned of the two horses, largely due to two major injuries sidelining him for more than two years.

"He broke a bone in his hock when he was 5," recalled Flynn. "Then about two years ago, I had him tied up and something spooked him. He set back and flipped over and broke four spinous process on his withers."

Toby was supposed to be Flynn's breakaway horse and she had been roping calves on him when he injured his hock. When it came time to start exercising him again after the hock injury, Flynn did his conditioning by long-trotting around the barrels.

"Honestly, he took to it better than we thought he would," she said. "He was just easy. We started taking him some jackpots, and about the third or fourth time I took him, he was already clocking in the 1D."

Not wanting to push him too hard due to his prior hock injury, Flynn ran Toby a little and then kicked him out for a while before repeating the process again. When she finally took him to his first college rodeo in the spring of her senior year, Flynn knew she had a promising horse on her hands.

"Here in the last year, I've run him more than I ever have," she said. "This last summer, I hauled him as my backup horse and he really proved to me that he can run with the big dogs. Now, with my yellow horse kind of hurt on and off, I've had to run him. He's really proven that he can keep up with them."

Flynn is up at Rodeo Austin on Tuesday night. She'll run at Nacogdoches, Texas, on Friday morning and hopefully return to Austin for their finals. Flynn plans on heading to Florida early to prepare for the RAM National Circuit Finals Rodeo in Kissimmee. With the money at the RNCFR counting toward the WPRC World Standings this year, the stakes at the lucrative rodeo are even higher.

With $12,090 won at 13 rodeos, Flynn is currently 25th in the WPRC World Standings.

Pay It Forward with Jill Moody

With the aftermath of the fires in the Midwest still looming on the horizons and haunting people in their dreams Pay It Forward takes on a life of its own. The convoys of hay, supplies, equipment, and life's necessities converging on the disaster zones show just how powerful the meaning of those three little words can be. From cash donations, benefit auctions, and manpower, to a simple prayer, the outpouring of graciousness has given those affected a ray of sunshine in a despondent situation.

The recent grass fires are foremost in my mind but floods, tornados, blizzards and other forms of Mother Nature's fury have caused equal or greater devastation to country and city alike. But, in what seems to be a dark society, the way people pull together to help one another, restores a little faith in mankind's abilities to be humble and kind.

On the other hand, are any of us prepared to be the one who is dealt that horrible blow by Mother Nature? We all think it won't happen to us, until it does.

I was visiting a vendor today at a rodeo and we were discussing how emergency first aid kits seem to be a hard sell, certainly more difficult than a bling headstall. The general consensus is that having a first aid kit is a great idea, but they are somewhat cost prohibitive. With that said, remember that you as a horse owner have the ethical and moral responsibility to not only provide feed, water, and shelter for your animal but to be prepared and act accordingly as the first responder in the event of illness, an accident or a natural disaster.

First aid kits are designed to help you deal with minor injuries on your own and as a stop gap measure to contain an emergency until professional help arrives. A great deal of thought and technology is put into developing kits that will provide you with the necessary supplies to address the majority of the injuries or traumas you may encounter on your particular endeavor or impending incident. They are not equipped with provisions that will allow you to become a practicing veterinarian.

EquiMedic USA (www.equimediacom.com) is a South Dakota based company that sells equine kits around the world including trail riding and trailering kits, barn kits, equine and canine specific kits, and a kit designed by myself to encompass your needs if you live on the road. They range in size and supplies to treat a single wound to a free standing mobile first aid barn station.

You will find a range of items in these kits including, but not limited to cohesive wrap, roll cotton, gauze pads, blood stop powder, betadine scrubs, antibiotic ointment, hydrogen peroxide, disposable gloves, flashlights, hoof picks, tweezers, aspirin, self-adhesive bandages, even sunscreen and more, depending on your kit of choice. You will not find prescription drugs, suture material, staple guns or anything of that nature in these kits. Unless you have been properly educated to use such items you are better off without them.

Beyond having emergency supplies on hand it is also a good idea to have identification on your horse. EquestriSafe (www.equestri-safe.com), a California based company, makes and distributes waterproof neck bands and fetlock bands that provides an area in which to write pertinent information regarding your horse should it be displaced. They are also available monogrammed with your personal message. The neck bands are also a great way for people to not only identify your horse in the event of a natural disaster but to catch your horse should it escape from its pasture, hot wire fence, or halter and tie.

EquiMedic USA and EquestriSafe are two great companies who offer you products to help you be prepared for ominous situations. If you don't find the products to suit your needs through these companies than I encourage you do a little research, purchase the products you deem necessary, and have them on hand and easily accessible. Do it today. Tomorrow might be too late. As far as cost, an investment in your horse's life is far more important than bling on a headstall.

I am sorry that I am off topic as far as "barrel racing" is concerned but I am Paying It Forward to you by advising you to expect the best, but prepare for the worst. My sincerest sympathy goes out to everyone who has been dealt a traumatic blow to their pets, horses, and / or livestock no matter how large or small the scale. For those of you who have lent a helping hand I am personally extending my appreciation of your empathy and kindness. For those of you on the receiving end of Paying It Forward accept with graciousness and express your gratitude with a simple: "Thank You".

Headin' For Home

by Sherry Morrison
Triple M (Mike Morrison Ministries)

I went to a horsemanship clinic last week...you know...so I could learn some new techniques...little did I know that what I THOUGHT I knew was not much compared to the two guys that were helping me. It was embarrassing, and humbling, and half way through the day my brain froze up. I really thought there was room in there for new ways of doing things. But there was so much to change and so much new stuff that I doubt I've processed 1/10 of it. I will though. I had a wonderful time! I don't know about the clinicians, however. Bet they went home shaking their heads. This was pretty basic stuff to them.

It can be like that in our Christian walk. Have you ever caught yourself arguing with someone about the Bible and what it says? I have. I have even prayed a scripture over myself for days and then actually went and read it again, only to discover that I had left out part of it. Now that's embarrassing. Just like training a horse. We get limited success in 'our' program and we won't go any further because we think we are so right. Well, that is until we meet someone who really DOES know more than we do.

So here's some homework for you. How about you find the scripture in the Bible that you base your belief on and write it down? Do you believe in healing? Write that scripture down. Prosperity? Write it down. You can't ever say again..."well my grandma/dad/pastor said". Nope. You have to find it yourself so you KNOW that GOD said it! In the meantime, I'll be practicing stops and circles...
