Triumphant Return – Anita Ellis & SGL Rico Win San Antonio Rodeo

By Tanya Randall

Less than four months recovered from an accident that nearly took her life, Anita Ellis made a triumphant return to pro rodeo with a $24,768 championship at the $198,150 San Antonio Stock Show & Rodeo, held February 12-28 in Texas.

“I feel so blessed,” said Ellis. “I feel like I’m coming back to myself. It feels good.”

Ellis and her former futurity standout and Calgary Stampede Champion SGL Rico earned the San Antonio title by being the tournament-style rodeo’s highest money earner. They picked up $3,853 after placing in two of the three rounds of the bracket to advance to the semifinals. After placing second in their semifinal, Ellis and Rico headed into the Finals as the fourth high-money earner. Their final run of 14.16 topped the round for $16,512 to seal the victory.

“He did so good,” she said of the 6-year-old gelding by The Goodbye Lane out of the Winners Version mare Version Blue. “The first two times I ran him, he went a little wide at the first. I think he felt a little nervous about the ground right there, and he did trip a little on the semifinal run. But he did amazing. He handled it well. I was so proud of how he worked and handled everything.”

The victory, coupled with the $4,974 she won at last year’s Wilderness Circuit Finals, has Ellis near the top of the WPRA World Standings with $29,742.

“I’m excited just to be back in the game, to be honest,” she said. “The good thing is nothing seems to bother me with the rodeo world right now. I’m excited with how well I’ve done. Last year I had so much pressure from wanting to do well, and I did amazing. This year I feel different. I’m just so grateful to be alive, be a mother still, and have my little grandbaby. I’m just so thankful for life. I’m seeing things a little bit differently now in a big way.”

The first time National Finals Rodeo qualifier was preparing to run her futurity horse on November 15 when she suffered a traumatic brain injury. She had to turn out of the NFR and was hospitalized until late December.

Ellis’s biggest battles are multifaceted.

“There’s so much dizziness and your eyes won’t work right. You can’t focus. Moving your eyes too fast in one direction makes you dizzy. It’s nonstop. Anyone with a brain injury knows what I’m talking about,” she said.

Her family headed to Arizona mid-January, and she was determined to get back on her horses.

“I was just so scared, but I decided that I was just going to get on and walk and see how my eyes react to it and how my body feels,” explained Ellis, who started using a One K Helmet when she rides to protect her still healing fractures and fragile noggin. “Physically I had so much work to do on my muscles. It was like my mind forgot how to use my own legs. It was so weird. It took a long time to feel like I could handle getting on a horse.

“I got on really slow and walked the first day. I can’t believe what that did for me. I felt like I was going to be OK. I came back to myself on my horses. I thought everything’s going to be OK. I’ll go slow at first, making sure I’m keeping my balance. That’s what I did the first two weeks. A little bit at a time, I would trot to make sure they were getting into good shape. When I started loping I kept my vision and I wouldn’t get dizzy.”

Ironically, Ellis noted that she was sometimes dizzy off a horse than she was riding.

“I didn’t know if I was OK enough (to compete in San Antonio) until three days before we left,” she admitted. “I didn’t have (the dizziness and focus issues) completely gone until I ran Rico in Arizona. It was days before I left that I felt like I was OK; that I was going to make it.”

Ellis' first run back was in the Open at the Royal Crown Race in Buckeye, Arizona. A tipped barrel couldn't mar the jubilation of making that run. "I felt so good and so confident in myself that I was going to make it through it all," she said.

Ellis also had to battle the emotions of her injury.

"I'd have to tell myself those emotions belong to your injury, not to you," she said.

She also had anxiety where none existed before, but thankfully she talked herself through it.

"One thing with a brain injury is you have emotions that don't even feel like they belong to you," she said. "Anxiety was running rampant when I was trying to get down to the arena. I had to talk myself through that—'You've run Rico 100s of times. He will take care of you.' I got super nervous the first couple of times I ran—and the last, but I was more in control of it by that point."

Ellis also has to combat the exhaustion of healing.

"I need a lot of help still," she said. "I get so tired. That's overwhelming still, the exhaustion you get with your brain healing. It takes so much energy out of you."

She was really concerned about her energy levels between her second and third runs at San Antonio which were hours apart on Saturday with a matinee and evening performance.

"I didn't know how I was going to make it, running two times in one day," she said. "I was so nervous about that. I get so tired, it's unreal. I've never felt this level of exhaustion before this. After I ran him the first time and then I had to go lay down for 45 minutes because I wasn't going to make it that night if I didn't. I felt pretty good on my third run, but I had to go right to bed after that."

Thankfully, her husband Brandon has been with her every step of the way.

"I'm so grateful for Brandon helping me through all of this," she said. "He's done so much of the work that I'm used to doing."

Ellis still works daily therapies to improve her vision and vestibular balance. Although doctors are amazed at how quickly she's recovered, Ellis' personal timeline is a little more aggressive.

"Every doctor I went to was surprised," she said. "They were like, you act like you're eight months into recovery. I'm like, 'Ok, that's good, but I want it to happen faster!'"

Ellis and her family are forever grateful to the "cowboy community."

"I can't even tell you how many people have prayed for me, wished me luck, helped me...just so many people. I'd like to thank the vets: Dr. Moulton in Blackfoot. He helped me with horses when I was trying to recover at home; South Valley Equine, I've gotten so much help from them. I appreciate them very much.

Emily Beisel's Vanilla Gorilla Shines at The Tucson Rodeo

By Tanya Randall

Emily Beisel's homebred Vanilla Gorilla ("Trigger") claimed his first major title with a $10,348 victory at the $27,500-added La Fiesta de Los Vaqueros Rodeo, held in Tucson, Arizona.

"Breeding horses isn't my forte," said the seven-time National Finals Rodeo qualifier from Weatherford, Oklahoma. "We really don't have the facilities for it. It takes a staff to raise them up and get them going. Really it's a miracle that we kept him alive long enough for him to be doing what he's doing! We're just really tickled with what he's accomplished."

Trigger was Beisel's first attempt at raising horses. She had Quijet, a full sister to Rare Dillion that took Carlee Otero her first National Finals Rodeo and later won the world title for Callie duPerier Apffel, and with the aid of Jeff Switzer, had bred her a few times but Trigger, who is by Dash Ta Fame, was the only one make it to birth.

"The mare was very talented, but she did not handle the rodeo road," Beisel said of the daughter of Firecracker Fire out of a Rare Jet mare. "I could win on her from home, as long as I was bouncing back and forth between the house, but anytime I went to be gone for an extended period of time, she didn't handle it."

Beisel said the process of making Trigger a horse was "complicated" as his dam passed along some of her nervous traits.

"It's taken us a long time and a lot of patience," said Beisel of the now 9-year-old gelding. "Shawn McConnell out of Hereford, Texas, broke him for me. He did a great job, but Trigger just needed to grow up. I started him on the pattern and was struggling. I just thought maybe I wasn't good enough to teach him how to run barrels."

MY UNCLE IS FAMOUS

While Shane Pendleton played a vital role in making Vanilla Gorilla the champion he is, he also inspired the gelding's unique name, which came courtesy of a video updates on the horse's progress to his owner Emily Beisel

"Shane's personality is very unique and has a good sense of humor," chuckled Beisel. "He was riding him one day and did the Steve Irwin, Crocodile Hunter, accent, 'I'm out here on the ol' Vanilla Gorilla, checking out some bovine . . .' and I lost it! I said, 'That's it! I'm changing his name!'"

Although My Uncle Is Famous was a good, cute name, she said, Vanilla Gorilla fit the gelding to a T.

"Even though his barn name is Trigger, everyone calls him Vanilla Gorilla," Beisel said. "He's a big yellow horse with a head you could land a plane on. He's like a super-sized Golden retriever but he's also Curious George, the monkey."

Beisel sent Trigger to Kelly Garrison, who had ridden Quijet, for few weeks to get her opinion. After riding him, Garrison said that Trigger needed a job, so Beisel sent him to Shane Pendleton, who has a cowhorse background, to be a ranch horse for six months. Beisel started running Trigger in the summer of 2022. It didn't take him long to find the 1D, but it would take a while for Beisel to get him ready to join her rodeo string.

“Running barrels was never his problem,” she said. “I can’t even say that I trained him. I think he was born to run barrels and all I did was try not to screw him up. It’s been all the other elements that were complicated for this horse. Luckily because of my experience with his mother taught me how to deal with that.”

She had Garrison haul Trigger the summer of 2023 while she rodeoed.

“He just needed repetition,” Beisel said. “I feel like that helped give him confidence.”

Trigger got his first pro rodeo win at Fredonia, Kansas, in 2024. Last year, he was Beisel’s second-richest mount behind Teasin Dat Guy (“Chewy”), owned by 4M Equine, but he didn’t get a rodeo win.

Beisel had wanted to run Trigger at Tucson all along but had to put in the work to prepare him accordingly.

“I watched Tucson on Saturday and knew that I needed to figure out something to help my horse,” she explained. “I’ve got to have a little different headgear on this horse because he’s going to need me to help him. At the barrel races, he’s autopilot but in that situation with the boogeyman around every corner and the ground was really tough, he was going to need my help.”

Beisel decided to try Quijet’s No Hit Bit at a local jackpot, and he was second to his stablemate Dashing Olie. She also worked the four barrel drill during the week to make sure Trigger was comfortable with the bit and her handling him.

With all the distractions outside the arena and vastness of the inside, Trigger was on high alert for his Tucson runs.

“He was extremely watchy,” she said. “I had to stay hooked. I couldn’t give him an inch. Otherwise, we weren’t going to make it to our destination!”

The stage coach, which laps the arena right before the barrels, was almost his undoing on their first go run in Friday’s performance.

“That stagecoach right before the barrels was terrifying,” she said. “I was second out in my first perf, so I had to be up there while the stagecoach comes blasting out of the arena. That was pretty traumatizing for him. For him to come back to me and go make the run that he did, when I only had 30 seconds to get his head back on straight...The pickup man and his horse was a Godsend. Without him and his calm horse there, I don’t know if we would have got this done. I was so proud of that horse for overcoming that obstacle.”

Beisel and Trigger split second in the first round with Lisa Lockhart, who crossed the $4 million mark in career WPRA earnings, and Rosas Cantina CC.

Thankfully, Beisel and Trigger were last out in the short go on Sunday.

“For the first time in my life, I was happy to draw last,” she chuckled. “I’d have a little more time to get him focused after the stagecoach comes out. But as soon as I ran, there were chuckwagons in the alley!”

Beisel said she was very fortunate that she had other horses to count on, so she could take the time Trigger needed to make him the horse she dreamed he’d be.

“I never had to put that horse in a situation that I wasn’t confident that he could handle it,” she said.

“It was never really a training issue with him as much as it was a management issue. I’ve always had to make sure I’ve managed my horse properly.

“He was worth waiting on. To have it all come together has been so rewarding because it’s always been under the hood if I did right by my horse.”

Coupled with Ivory On Fire’s

$11,558 haul from the San Antonio Stock Show & Rodeo in Texas, Beisel’s $21,906 weekend made her the new World No. 1 in the WPRA Standings with $37,195.

Lockhart Becomes First WPRO Member Reach $4 Million in Career Earnings

By Ann Bleiker

Lisa Lockhart kicked off Women's History Month by becoming the first WPRO member to surpass the $4 million mark in career earnings all from barrel racing. Lockhart of Oelrichs, S.D., finished second in the average at La Fiesta de los Vaqueros in Tucson, Arizona to seal the deal as her quest for her 20th NFR qualification is well underway.

Lisa Lockhart has come a long way from serving on the Oelrichs, S.D. school board to being a fan favorite and now $4 million barrel racer in the WPRO.

"Number 1, I hadn't thought about it (the milestone) and was not on my radar at all," stated a surprised Lockhart. "I have always said records are made to be broken but anytime you can cross the bridge first it is cool. I feel very honored and it is quite an accomplishment."

For the finals in Tucson, Lockhart had to call upon a new team member, she calls Copper, because she left Rosa in Houston, which starts tonight (March 2) for her. She bought Copper as a yearling and trained him so to have him step up and get the check to push her over the mark is special.

Lisa Lockhart and her new team member Copper got the job done in Tucson finishing second in the average to become the first WPRO member to reach the $4 million mark in career earnings.

"It is cool to have another one to be part of the whole team," commented Lockhart about Copper. "I am always proud of my team, and it has been a team of horses to get to this mark. To have it be on one that I trained is very cool."

Copper had only been called upon at a couple of circuit rodeos, Denver and San Antonio prior to the Final round in Tucson, but he listened to his jockey and got her to this historic accomplishment.

Lockhart joined the WPRO in 1993 and spent her early career making a name for herself in the Badlands Circuit Finals. In fact, it was there in 2022 where she surpassed the $3 million mark in her career. She qualified for her first NFR in 2007 and hasn't missed one since.

She has won the NFR average title three times in her career in 2014, 2016 and 2023. She crossed the $1 million mark in her career in 2012, the $2 million in 2016, $3 million in 2022 and on March 1, 2026, she hit the $4 million mark.

"I never imagined this," noted Lockhart. "I never imagined making it to the NFR let alone 19 times let alone crossing $4 million. I didn't grow up thinking about it, believing it or wanting it. The fact that it has happened by chance more than anything is amazing. I guess if you just put your head down and work hard as you can, then what will be will be. I am very honored."

She has come a long way from serving on the Oelrichs, S.D. school board to being a fan favorite and now $4 million barrel racer in the WPRO.

HEADIN' FOR HOME

by Sherry Morrison // Triple M (Mike Morrison Ministries)

Ever feel 'less than'? I can't tell you how many times I have felt inferior, dumb, inadequate. Worry and inadequacy are probably two of the things I've struggled with, and work on, the most.

I see other people as more talented, more interesting, and generally just 'more'. I admire the gifts in others. A lot.

Well, if this is you as well, I heard a GREAT Bible teaching that is going to help us all! This teaching was about telling others about Jesus and praying with them, but it works for everything!

They said that if 'you are timid and just find it hard to talk to others, or pray with others, remember this.it's not YOU that you are taking with you, it's JESUS on the inside of you'. Well, duh! OF COURSE! Now why didn't I think of that???

Because it's Jesus when we tell others about healing. It's Jesus when we tell them that He wants us rich, socially confident, and relationally strong. That sure took the pressure off ME.

I Peter 5:7 tells us to roll our care over on Him. I'm seeing that scripture in a whole new light. We are NEVER alone in life. God is sooooo good.

Mike and Sherry Morrison pastor "Church at the Barn" in Gillette, WY. They also travel to other areas ministering at barrel races, ranches, rodeos, churches and home Bible studies. Check out our schedule online. You can also download all Bible studies by visiting our website: m-m-m.org or contact us at: PO Box 2439, Gillette, WY 82717, 307/685-2272.
