Mowry Sweeps Second Straight BBR Slot Race

By Julie Mankin

Can you imagine an Open 5D that pays 30 places in each division? How about three of them? Welcome to the World Championship Finals of Better Barrel Races.

The big event happened last weekend in Oklahoma City, Okla., and included a 4-year-old slot race, a 5-year-old futurity and a ginormous bunch of Open barrel racing that altogether brought the Finals payout to some half-million dollars.

For the second straight year, Kassie Mowry was the top slot-race dog at the BBR World Finals.

Last year she won $20,000 for beating 19 other horses in the 4-year-old slot race aboard Epic Leader (who is spending the spring season standing to mares) in Oklahoma City. This time, she was running 4-year-old My Guy Can Fly for Dave and Lori Zabel of North Dakota. Again, she won the $20,000, courtesy of her time of 15.394. Both those horses must like the Jim Norick Coliseum in Oklahoma City – they also won rounds of the BFA's Juvenile Futurity there as 3-year-olds.

"I do love Oklahoma City, and the ground there is a little different; it's a little grabby," said Mowry. "My horses are good on any kind of ground, but some colts want to get in and slide and when they can't, it kind of scares them."

By Frenchman's Guy and out of Polly's On The Go, My Guy Can Fly has a flood of maternal old-school racehorse blood. His dam is double-bred Jet Deck and Go Man Go – she's a granddaughter of Rocket Wrangler on the top side, and is out of a mare by Pie In The Sky crossed on a Windy Ryon daughter.

"Fly Guy is huge and has a stride that goes on forever," said Mowry. "He feels like he's loping the pattern when he runs and he's just incredibly smooth."

Randy Schuchard, who sent FM Radio and other winners to Mowry in the past, raised "Fly Guy" before Zabels bought him.

"That colt is so talented it's ridiculous," Mowry said. "He gets sidetracked easy and loses focus and is real spooky, so it's about keeping him locked on. In the slot race, he really locked on the first and second but got distracted going to third so I popped him with my bat to get his attention back on me instead of the tractors."

Second in the slot race went to Leslie Willis on a half-thoroughbred Corona Cartel grandson named Incendiary Ivory for $10,000, while Mark Bugni claimed third and earned $7,500 on BT Buddy Stinson.

All the slot horses had to also be entered in the Futurity, so their slot run was actually also their qualifying run for the Futurity. The top 30 total fastest times came back to run in the Futurity Finals, while all others ran again in the Futurity Consolation Round.

Mowry's slot-race time on Fly Guy qualified her second to the Futurity Finals behind Sam Flannery's UX Sweet Vanilla Fame. Plus, her run of 15.520 on Winnie Archer's sorrel filly Naughty Take Off also qualified her third into the Finals.

Qualifying two horses back-to-back in the top three to the Futurity Finals was a double-edged sword for Mowry, who had to make a fast switch between runs.

"It was hard with a lot of adrenaline going to catch my breath," said Mowry, who ended up tipping the first barrel on Fly Guy and placing ninth on Naughty Take Off. "There are things I have to do before my run or it doesn't feel right to me, so I was nervous about that, and I felt like everyone was waiting on me and I'd better get in there and go! But the horses took care of me – I was so proud of both of them."

Naughty Take Off (Take Off Jess/Six Fols) had always been talented but kept coming up muscle-sore. Since Mowry changed the filly's diet in February, she's been a top contender. As for Fly Guy, maturity is helping.

"As a 3-year-old, he was so afraid to get near barrels that I could barely get him around the pattern," said Mowry. "We've come a long way! He's looking around less and less and will be easier to ride by the end of the season. When he goes and makes a run where

Fast Eddie Lives Up to His Name at BBR World Finals

By Julie Mankin

The barn name for 4-year-old BT Buddy Stinson is "Fast Eddie" because "he's smokin' fast and he'll take your money," said jockey Mark Bugni. And the gelding owned by Bridget Thomas did just that in the Futurity and Slot Race in Oklahoma City.

"I told Bridget a long time ago to have faith and give this horse time," cracked Bugni. "I ended up drawing up first out in the slot race, and I promised her I'd be leading it after our run."

But he'd already sung the praises of Fast Eddie back at the LG Pro Classic in Kinder, La., when he won the slot race on IRA Grand Victory (who was purchased immediately afterward by the Schiller Ranch).

In Oklahoma City on Fast Eddie, Bugni had placed third in the slot race on a time that qualified him fifth back to the Futurity Finals. In the slowest-to-fastest Finals, a 15.4 was leading the round, and Bugni would still have to sweat out Mowry on two horses (My Guy Can Fly and Naughty Take Off); Leslie Willis on Incendiary Ivory; and qualifying-round winner Sam Flannery on her buckskin UX Sweet Vanilla Fame.

That's when Bugni clocked the absolute fastest run of the entire event (including more than 1,500 Open horses) – a 15.261 – that soon had Thomas crying and laughing and jumping up and down.

"I knew after my run they had to throw something phenomenal down to outrun me," he said. "I knew our run was that good. Sometimes you ride out and know your run is beatable, but I knew it would take something unbelievable this time."

Willis was able to clock a 15.394 to squeeze into second place, and the deal was done (she earned a cool $15,794 on the weekend). Bugni had bettered his time by almost four-tenths from the first run to the finals.

"The only thing I changed was that in the slot race, I'd tried to guide him too much into the first barrel, and he caught me off-guard with how focused he was and popped me out over his shoulder," said Bugni. "My plan in the Finals was to just send him in there. There was no reason to hold back, and I felt he was absolutely ready."

For third in the Slot Race and winning the Futurity, Bugni pulled “He’s a truly gritty type of horse,” said Bugni of Fast Eddie. “He’s never resisted turns; when you put him in there he just goes in and digs and pushes around every step. # Cline Tops 1,500 Racers at BBR World Finals

By Julie Mankin

Aside from the Futurity and Slot Race, there were two big Open 5D races over three days in Oklahoma City in two arenas with near-identical patterns. The top 30 racers across each division in both races advanced to a "short round" in the Coliseum. All three Open races paid the same amount – including 30 places in each division. The Open in Barn 6 was won by Jolene Montgomery on KN Fabs Mist Of Fame with a time of 15.293. She won a first-place paycheck of $3,367, as did Hayden Segelke, who rode HPQ Smokin Rascal to first place in the other Open held in the Coliseum. In the Short Round, however, it was Andrea Cline who could say she'd bested 1,500 of the best horses in the world.

Cline's time – a 15.263 – on 8-year-old Streak Sense was very close to being the fast time of the entire shindig in Oklahoma City, and paid her $3,367. She'd had a good weekend, also placing 11th in the Futurity on Suzanne Moseley's Blazin Jetolena colt and fifth aboard her 4-year-old Stitches Streak N Fame for another $2,897.

"I just liked 'Streak' ever since I met him," said Cline. "He's incredibly kind and a little bit of a clown. He needed a lot of confidence in the beginning, but he's so fast and athletic – he made these big moves around the barrel. A couple times I've almost fallen off him coming around."

Streak is by Charmayne James' stud Always Sixes (by Streakin Six and out of a Raise Your Glass daughter).

"Charmayne raised Streak and owns his mother and father," said Cline. "She started him and sent him to me to finish out and I bought him after three weeks."

rel – they’re just kind of in and out so fast. You use a lot of outside leg and more middle of the rein and loads of collection. It was an adjustment for me, but she put a lot of hours into me riding with me and making little suggestions, all of which I tried. Riding her horses has really elevated my game.”

Streak has never had much of a left-hand turn and still doesn’t. He’s stiff that direction, so Charmayne started him to the left first. He still typically runs past that barrel, but Cline just doesn’t panic, because he’s fast enough to win money even without a good first turn. She’s placed on him at rodeos like Laughlin, Nev., and Pocatello, Idaho, and sold him once but got him back.

“He’s such a different horse,” she said. “He’s still a big baby and you kind of have to cater to him. But I get along with him and I win on him.”

Maybe getting him back was fate – Cline has the NFR in her sights someday in the next few years. For now, though, her focus is on riding customer horses and taking them wherever it’s best they compete, usually not far from her home near Weatherford, Texas.

Pay It Forward with Jill Moody

by Jill Moody

I was trying to explain to one of my friends how their horse felt in his turns and the only word I could come up with was sticky. The horse felt sticky in his turns. I admit I have found myself in a few sticky situations that had nothing to do with horses. The truck was too loud, the dog dug holes in the neighbors grass, the horses have made the fly population triple, etc., etc.

People can turn an otherwise mundane situation into a three ring circus by how they react to unpleasant circumstances. If differences of opinion are handled inappropriately by any of the concerned parties the situation becomes sticky. Resolving the issues between parties can be as simple as an accepted apology, a strained relationship of agreeing to disagree, or drawing a line in the sand not to be crossed. What does it take to un-stick a sticky horse?

Basic horse training tells us to make it easy for them to do what we want them to do and difficult to do what we don't want them to do. When we get after them with a kick or a pull and they "tend towards" making what we believe is the correct move then we release. The horse has apologized and we have accepted and a congenial relationship continues.

Maybe the horse is older and has some soundness issues that are creating what we feel is a problem. In that case "training" the horse will probably be frustrating and unproductive so the best thing to do is agree to disagree and get along with each other as well as we can.

Then we have the horses and people alike who are just plain difficult. When either or both sides exhibit this personality trait and the line is drawn in the sand, the horse needs a different job or a new home and the person needs a new occupation or a different hobby. When the war is on the relationship is not only problematic but also dangerous.

Whatever issues are creating stickiness in our human and/or equine relationships should be dealt with in a manner that creates serenity. Sometimes that is an impossible task but regardless, we should still continue to strive for harmony. Just make sure that if you throw your sucker in the dirt you intend to leave it there, otherwise you may wind up with a sticky situation and a mouthful of sand. If your neighbor throws his sucker in the dirt kill him with kindness and offer to wash it off for him. When it comes to your horse forget the sucker and get him a bag of carrots!

Sheena Robbins & Bar D Mr Dual Olena Shine at Clovis

By Tanya Randall

Former Wrangler National Finals Rodeo qualifier Sheena Robbins finished off a profitable April with a $6,031 victory at the Wrangler Million Dollar Tour Rodeo in Clovis, Calif., April 26-28. She also split a $1,108-win at the Springville Sierra Rodeo, held April 27-28 in Springville, with Kassidy Dennison.

The victories meant that her superstar Bar D Mr Dual Olena ("Shorty") is back strong after a nearly career-ending injury in 2011. "He's doing really good," said Robbins, who was ponying him at the time of this interview. "At the end of 2011, he tore a right hind suspensory. I had a couple different vets look at him and say it's pretty much a career ending injury. They weren't sure that he'd come back from it."

Robbins gave Shorty about year off before returning him to competition at the California Rodeo in Salinas in July 2012.

"He just didn't feel like he was 100 percent," she recalled. "I took him up the Northwest with me, but I only ran him at a few rodeos where I knew he liked it. I came home and went that last weekend to our circuit rodeos and that's when he came back to himself and was firing again."

Robbins had a limited winter since she didn't haul much in 2012.

"I went a little this winter, but from not going last year I didn't get to get into Houston or San Antonio," she said. "I didn't have a great winter, just picked up a check here and there. I wasn't really sure what I was going to do. Now he feels back to himself and I'm just going to go until he doesn't want to go basically."

This past weekend, Robbins and Shorty, a 12-year-old former reined cowhorse prospect, started with a slack run at Clovis on Friday. The $15,000-added rodeo was limited to 60 entries and was progressive after the first round, meaning the top 24 from slack advanced to their second runs during the performances on Friday and Saturday night.

"On Friday, he was not very good going in the gate," Robbins said. "I was a little bit frazzled and I don't feel like I rode him very good, but he still worked good and clocked decent."

They ended up fifth in the first round and would make their second run on Saturday night after morning slack at Springville.

"At Springville, I just wanted to get him in the gate good," she said, "and he went in really well and moved over for me. The ground was really kind of deep and heavy. A lot of good horses weren't clocking, but he clocked really good."

Between her two runs on Saturday she drove to her home in nearby Fresno, Calif., to allow Shorty to rest.

"I think this weekend was nice for him because he got to come back and sleep here at the house and rest in his own pen," she noted. "Even though he made more runs this weekend, then say he did last weekend, he still was at home rather than in a little box stall at Red Bluff or a little portal pen at Oakdale."

For her second run at Clovis, Shorty was a saint at the gate and

HEADGEAR: None

SADDLE: Catsw or Diamond Horse Supply Saddle

GRAIN: Triple Crown

HAY: Grass & Alfalfa

SUPPLEMENTS: Chiropractic care, Back On Track wraps, Magnetic blanket, swimming at Premier Equine Center in Oakdale smoked a round-winning 16.95.

Robbins was pumped for the short go on Sunday until she discovered that she had made it to the rodeo without her bits. On Saturday, she had tied her horses to her fiancé Cade Swor's trailer and she thought she'd left her bridles in it. With Swor catching a ride to the rodeo in Guymon, Okla., she decided to take his trailer.

"I didn't even think about grabbing my bits because I just knew I had put them in his trailer," she laughed. "When I went to get on, I didn't have any of my bits. I had to borrow one of Cade's bits."

Thank God, he had one draw bit. Everything else was roping bits. So I ran in his draw bit with his roping reins."

Robbins was more irritated at herself for forgetting her bits than being nervous in running Shorty in a strange bit. In fact, Robbins normally switches between a chain Petska and an O-ring between rounds to keep Shorty free.

"He's pretty solid and he did his job no matter what I had on him," said Robbins, who is sponsored by Professional's Choice, Silver Lining Herbs, Jaco Brands and Best Ever Pads.

When it was time for her run, Shorty thought about hanging at the gate because Robbins' start was delayed by a hold on the arena.

"He kind of tried me once," she said. "The girl before me had lost a shoe or something in the pattern, but once I started to the gate, he walked right in and took off. I was little nervous going to the first, but I didn't want to pull him up once he started so he was running literally from the back of the box. It worked out because he smoked the first barrel."

They finished second in the short round to last weekend's stars Trula Churchill and A Streak Of Rita, but came out on top in the average.

Robbins will stick around her home state until the summer run starts at the end of June.

"I'll go to all my circuit rodeos until Reno and then we'll take off and go," she explained. "I try to get all my circuit rodeos done before we leave in June because we only really come back for Salinas."

Headin' For Home

by Mike Morrison
Triple M (Mike Morrison Ministries)

Whether you're in arena competition or doing ranch work, you want a horse that works with you to get the job done. You need a horse that will FOCUS on what needs to be done. You need a horse that watches for the barrel instead of fluttering flags. Many times a horse with a steady disposition that tries hard will outperform one with more speed.

As Christians living in this turbulent world, we need to keep our focus on the Creator of all things--the One who is ultimately in charge. We can't let ourselves become distracted by the "fluttering flags", the temporal things in this world. There are lots of Scriptures telling us to "fear not", the Lord fights for us. Isaiah 41:10 and Deuteronomy 3:22 are just two that come to mind. And, the way to fear not is to focus on God and always put Him first place in our lives. When we do that, we gain strength and insight from God to live out the good plan He has for our lives.

One young cowboy preacher in Texas painted a very good word picture. He said to think of God and His Word like and IV unit hospitals use to give a constant supply of whatever a patient needs. There are times when a person doesn't feel like getting in the Word, being joyful or focusing on the Lord. But, if you just stay connected to the Word, just like that IV line, God will supply you with strength, hope, joy, peace, victory, endurance, focus and whatever you need. He will provide what you need through the lifeline He has given us.

Remember to keep your FOCUS on our mighty God and the storms of life won't be able to touch you much!!
