Saving Their Best for Last – Hailey Kinsel & DM Sissy Hayday Win Ponoka Stampede

By Tanya Randall

Hailey Kinsel and her million dollar mare DM Sissy Hayday (“Sister”) saved their best run for last to win the Showdown and claim the barrel racing championship at the $50,000-added Ponoka Stampede, held June 25-July 1 in Alberta, Canada.

It was the 2018 WPRO World Champion Barrel Racers first trip to Canada for any other rodeos besides the Calgary Stampede, which she won last year.

“I’ve been wanting to go to Ponoka,” said the Cotulla, Texas, cowgirl. “I entered last year, but I didn’t get to go. I thought she would really like it. She ran really free out there.”

Running in the first performance, Kinsel and Sister took an early lead with a 17.511, which held until the very last performance when Emily Miller and Namgis D 33 (“Chongo”) blasted a 17.240 to take the round win.

The top 12 fastest time from the performances advance to a Final on July 1. While all 12 would get an average check, the top four in on two runs advanced to a Shootout for the rodeo championship.

Miller again set the pace in the Finals with a 17.342 to sweep both rounds and the aggregate. Ultimately, they ended up pocketing $14,954 to make a significant move in the standings. (Note: The Canadian rodeos won’t show up

Kinsel and Sister, an 8-year-old daughter of three-time WPRO World Champion Sire PC Frenchmans Hayday out of the Royal Shake Em mare Royal Sissy Irish, were fourth in the Finals with a 17.526 and finished third in the aggregate. Joining Miller and Kinsel in the Shootout were 2012 WPRO World Champions Mary Walker and Perculatin and Canadian Jenna O’Reilly and her 14-year-old Dual Rey gelding Xray.

In the Showdown, Kinsel and Sister posted their fastest run, a 17.359, to collect the $7,500 Shootout style victory and a $16,877 rodeo championship.

“I’m really grateful for the effort put into the rodeos up here and how kind everybody is,” she said. “We had a great group of girls. The Ponoka short round was stacked. The shootout was pretty awesome. It was a really great trip and I’m glad I did it. I will definitely have Ponoka and those others on my list to come back to.”

She said the format of the rodeo, which gave barrel racers an opportunity for money on every run, was part of its appeal.

Cowgirl earns $17,450, event featured at Reno Rodeo

Because of the Charlie 1 Horse All-Girl Challenge in Reno, Nevada, this year during Wrangler BFI Week, breakaway ropers were showcased for the first time ever June 27 during a performance of the "Wildest, Richest Rodeo in the West."

The PRCA's Reno Rodeo celebrated its 100th anniversary this year as one of North America's most prestigious events, crowding events in San Antonio and Fort Worth, Texas; Cheyenne, Wyoming; and Pendleton, Oregon as one of the six richest regular-season venues in the sport. On June 27, the top five from Wrangler BFI Week's 2019 Charlie 1 Horse event at the same venue roped in that night's Reno Rodeo for a winner-take-all cash prize of $1,000 put up by Hooley Brands and the Reno Rodeo just after the tie-down roping.

The landmark move comes just two years after Reno's All-Girl Team Roping – held since the 1990s in conjunction with the Bob Feist Invitational – added a breakaway event and started the trend sweeping professional rodeo. Soon thereafter, RFD-TV's The American rodeo in AT&T Stadium followed suit, as did a handful of PRCA rodeos and the WCRA.

"It's so cool," said Jackie Crawford, a 14-time world champion in the Women's Professional Rodeo Association (WPRA) from Stephenville, Texas. "I love that these big rodeos are giving girls another event that's fast-paced and uses some of the same skills as the guys."

In Reno, Crawford had roped three calves in 7.89 seconds to win the Charlie 1 Horse Breakaway Challenge and $7,000 cash plus the custom Cactus trophy saddle, buckle, and plethora of other BFI Week prizes. She clocked the fastest time of the short round – a 2.3-second run – despite a calf that ducked right.

"I've been one out of the money a lot lately, so I've been working on being aggressive," she said. "Breakaway is getting so tough that you cannot back off – not if you want to win – but even if you want to place anymore. I had to hit that start and get it on him."

She led the top five into the Reno Rodeo that night and roped last. Her longtime nemesis, fellow world champ Lari Dee Guy of Abilene, Texas, was leading for the $1,000 with a 3.9-second run when Crawford thrilled the crowd with a 3.8 to win the prize.

Prior to the Charlie 1 Horse Breakaway, Wrangler BFI Week presented by Yeti had kicked off in Reno on June 22, and was anchored by the 42nd Annual Bob Feist Invitational (BFI) on June 24. One of the main highlights of the week was the Charlie 1 Horse All-Girl Challenge team roping. Annually the richest open all-female roping in the country, it was live-streamed on www.wranglernetwork.com

A pair of Navajo "sisters" made the 12-hour drive from Arizona to Reno to out-rope nearly 160 teams in that event by just one-hundredth of a second to earn $26,000 cash and BFI Week's legendary prizeline.

Debbie Robbins of Winslow and Danielle Lowman of Mesa, both No. 5 ropers, roped their first three steers in 24.58 seconds to lead the pack into the short round by almost two seconds. Despite a penalty on the fourth steer, they squeaked into first place in the aggregate on four over Alabama's Beverly Robbins and Jesse Remsburg. Beverly Robbins (no relation to Debbie), also placed fourth with another partner to earn a Reno total of $9,688.

"I wanted that buckle here," said Debbie Robbins. "And I'm going to ride that saddle." She and Lowman share a grandmother and grew up about 45 minutes away from each other.

"Before we came out here, I told her, this time let's not practice as hard as we usually do," said Lowman, 26, a four-time Indian National Finals Rodeo qualifier. "Let's go over there and just win it all and come back."

Debbie Robbins, then, didn't rope at all in the week leading up to the event. She grew up roping sheep at her grandmother's house on the Navajo reservation. Since then, she's become an Indian National Finals Rodeo breakaway champion and the 2007 WPRA world all-around champion.

"I'd say our practice runs worked out pretty well here today," Debbie said. "This is a good roping – all the tough girls are here."

Danielle sometimes works in construction and competes in rodeos for a living, while Debbie takes care of her dad and rides and trains several horses a day. She practices on Corriente cattle that she and her brothers and cousins raise and contract to rodeos.

"BFI Week in Reno is a great place to have an all-girl roping," said Mary Jane Carpenter, marketing director for Charlie 1 Horse's parent company, Hatco. "Girls' breakaway and team roping just keeps growing. We love being part of it. The hats have become so fashionable outside the arena, with celebrities like Runaway June being fans, that it's fun to see them worn in the arena, too."

In 2017, Ullman-Peterson Events expanded the annual All-Girl team roping to incorporate an Incentive for ladies with lower classifications, when they added the breakaway competition and all-around bonus. This year, they also tweaked the team-roping format to "pick one/draw one."

One such drawn team won the #9 Incentive on three, worth $7,500. Californians Keely Kirkham of Livermore and Chelsey Bushnell of Red Bluff didn't know each other, and are both classified as #4 ropers. They were clean on all three steers to nail the fifth call-back position in the main roping. Their 10-second run in the finals secured third place in the main aggregate, too, for $8,000. Each woman took home $7,750.

"I love this incentive," said Bushnell. "You have a chance to draw some good ropers, and it makes it fun because you get to meet new girls and get to rope more times."

Lowman, riding her heel horse, also placed seventh in the aggregate of the breakaway with a three-head time of 10.04 seconds to win the $2,500 cash bonus and trophy Gist spurs awarded to the Charlie 1 Horse all-around champion during BFI Week. Her total haul in Reno was $17,450, all on a 9-year-old mare she calls Boots that she raised on the Navajo reservation and trained herself.

“The format up here is really cool, and that’s another reason I wanted to come,” she said. “The way it’s set up is you advance from the long round to a one run short round. It pays on the short round and the average, so if you make two good runs and are just out of making the final four you still have a shot a really good check or two. The shootout round afterwards, being what counts as champion, you can just go in and go for it in that last run. You’ve already won a check so your cushioned on that.”

With good money already in the bank, it makes the Shootout more enjoyable too, plus all four get a check regardless.

“You know if you make the short round, you know you’re going to get a check,” she continued. “In the shootout, if you make the pattern, you’re going to get a check. It’s pretty cool. I hate making runs on my horse when I’m not going to get a check. I know it happens, but when you’re on a good horse and you ask them to throw down, and you’re one out of the money, but you get to make another run, it just irks me. I like that this format gave you a good chance to win money if you made it past that first round.”

Rather than starting off her summer run with the Reno Rodeo and Pecos, Texas, as she did last year, Kinsel headed north after running at Hugo, Oklahoma, and Fort Smith, Arkansas, in May to acclimate her horses.

“I didn’t want them to go from 95 to 45 overnight,” she noted. Before Ponoka, Kinsel hit the three Canadian rodeos the weekend prior.

“I really wanted to go to Ponoka and I really wanted to make it worth the trip up here, so I went up a little early and went to those other three, earlier Canada rodeos,” said Kinsel. They’re all in Alberta and they’re all about two hours apart. It’s a really nice little run. They make it so you can work them all together.”

Kinsel also commended the grounds crew at all the Canadian Rodeos.

“They did a really good job on the ground with the rain and everything,” she said of the Ponoka committee. “They kept the ground even for six performances. Someone could make it back from every perf. It’s impressive that they tried that hard. That’s another reason that I wanted to come up to Canada. They’re known for trying so hard to get it right. It rains and they’re out there for hours and hours and hours, squishing the water out basically. They’re outstanding in how hard they try, and they know how to handle it. They’ve had a lot experience with it. It’s not their first rain.”

She referenced Wainwright as well. She finished second in the average there after running the mud.

“When I was at Wainwright, I was in the last perf at Wainwright, 11th out,” she explained. “It monsoon-ed the day before. Like we all got our trailers stuck in the parking lot it had rained so much. Tammy (Fischer) and I both placed in the last perf both toward the bottom. There is no other rodeo that I know of that you can be 11th out in the mud and get a check. That’s just because they try so hard all day long.”

When the Ponoka Championship is added into the 2019 standings, Kinsel should be closing in on current WPRA World Standings Leader Nellie Miller, the 2017 WPRA World Champion Barrel

Racer, going into the Fourth of July run. The win also gave her a little more leeway with her travel plans.

She had entered the Mandan Rodeo Days in North Dakota as a backup in case she didn’t make the Finals at Ponoka but turned out once she did. She also has Wednesday morning slack for the Cody Stampede in Wyoming and the performance at the Black Hills Roundup in Belle Fourche, South Dakota Wednesday night if she didn’t make the short go at the Greeley Independence Stampede in Colorado, slack at the Livingston Roundup in Montana on Thursday and the St. Paul Rodeo in Oregon on Saturday.

“I didn’t enter a lot,” said Kinsel, who has her mom Leslie entered with her at Cody, Livingston and Belle Fourche. “I’m not sure that I’m going to go to all of them. I haven’t decided yet.”

Rockin To The Top—Ivy Hurst & Top Of The Rock Win 100th Annual Reno Rodeo

By Tanya Randall

“It was one of the coolest nights of my life,” said 2019 Reno Rodeo Barrel Racing Champion Ivy Hurst of Springer, Oklahoma. Ridding her 12-year-old gelding Top Of The Roc (“Diddy”), Hurst led the $37,500-added rodeo, held June 21-29, from start to finish, earning $10,511.

“I didn’t realize until I got there that it was the 100th year celebration,” said Hurst. “The rodeo had a little bit different feeling this year. It was very nostalgic.” Hurst had the lead on the two run average, so she got back number one for the Finals. The secretary told her she was going to want to keep that No. 1 back number since it was the 100th Reno Rodeo.

“That’s pretty special and to finish it No. 1 was really, really neat,” she said. “That back number, even before I won it, made the hair stand up on your back a little bit.”

THE RUNDOWN w/Ivy Hurst

Top Of The Roc, “Diddy” 15 hands, 1,100 lbs.

“He’s a big horse. He’s a stout dude. All the steer wrestlers look at him when I lead him by.”

BIT: Depends on the set up. If it’s an indoor run, Ed Wright Lifter with a three-piece dog bone. Outdoor with “more funky ground,” L&W Steel Noseband Ring Combination. “That just gets me a little quicker reaction with him outside. Sometimes this ground is a little harder than he’s used to, so I need him ‘right now.”

SADDLE: Coats

SADDLE PAD: Classic Equine ESP Contour Wool Top

LEG GEAR: Classic Equine on all four

SHOEING: “He’s shod in regular shoes. I like rims on all my horses, but with him, he is so sure-footed and does so well. He wears an aluminum shoe on front and plain steel shoe on the back. I don’t want anymore traction on this horse because he’s already stopping in his turns.”

FEED: Bluebonnet Equilene

HAY: Mostly alfalfa. If I can get it on the road, orchard grass, mix.

SUPPLEMENTS: Simply Equine Herbs, OE Nutraceuticals Solution daily when on the road, Ultimate Oil. Runs on OE Nitro if he’s tired. OE Revive paste for electrolytes.

ALTERNATIVE THERAPIES: Simply Equine Cooling Gel post run, Back On Track and Magic Cushion. “I don’t own a lot of therapy products so it’s whatever, whoever I can find on the road. I don’t think there is anything better than a bunch of shavings and lots of rest. I use my PHT blanket a lot.

CONDITIONING-TRAINING REGIMEN: “At home it’s a little different than it is out here. I don’t work him on the barrels at home ever unless we have an issue. Out here, these setups are so different, I like to get him out to see the arenas. I had an ‘ah-ha’ moment with him this spring. He ran mediocre the first round at Red Bluff and then won the second. Back at Guymon, he ran mediocre the first round and won the second round. I used to have this theory keep him out of the arena and don’t let him see the barrels because he does want to get so close and get so short. I started realizing he gets better. I don’t ever run him in practice, but I’ll let him cruise to a barrel and feel the ground. He’s really smart to tune on. Whatever I do last is what he does next. I have to be very careful how I finish my sessions.”

Hurst was out the very first day of the rodeo, where each contestant had their first-round run in a morning slack before their second-round run in a nightly performance.

“That wasn’t what we wanted because I wanted to try to work Ponoka (Alberta) and some other things, but it just wasn’t in the cards for us,” she said. “I tried to get a trade, but everyone else was trying to get a trade because they wanted to work Ponoka too. But we made it work. Judging by all the rain they’ve had in Canada, I’m kind of glad we stayed down here.”

Running ninth on the ground for their first run, Hurst and Diddy turned in a round-winning 17.14.

“It was really deep, but he handles ground really well,” she said. “That’s one thing I can really compliment him on; he can muster through anything. I just went out there and let him do his thing. He just cut the second barrel; it was probably the best second barrel I’ve ever had. I maybe rode a little too aggressive up and around the third, but he still turned it good.”

That night in the performance the order flipped and she was closer to the top of the ground.

“It’s a very electric perf and I got excited,” she said. “I actually didn’t think my run that night was very good. My turns were a little sloppy. I guess I got a little carried away. I just knew we had run so well in the first round I just needed to make a good clean run in the second round. When they said a .3, I was surprised because it felt more like a .5 or .6.”

Going into the Finals, Hurst had a slim lead in the two-run aggregate.

“It was just stacked,” she said of the Finals. “I kept telling my husband over and over that it all comes down to tonight—whoever wins tonight. There’s no room here to let up and just go make a clean run.”

Hurst and Diddy posted a 17.11, good enough for second in the Finals and rodeo win.

“I just dropped the hammer and let him do his thing,” she said. “He just drew off the crowd and ran really hard. It was incredible! That whole run was kind of a blur and generally the really good ones are. It was the biggest highlight of my career!”

Hurst got to savor the victory during the rodeo’s grand finale fireworks display.

“Right after you run, they’re pulling you off your horse,” she explained. “Thankfully, Kellie Collier was there to take my horse back to the stall. They do a presentation in the arena and then they’re pulling you into the media room. Stevi Hillman said, ‘I don’t know if anyone told you, but tonight is the grand finale and they’re going to do the fireworks and it will be right after the barrel race.’ They’re trying to take me into the media room, and boom, the fireworks start going off. They were like, ‘Come with us,’ and I was like, ‘Can we just wait a second. I want to sit here and enjoy this for a moment.’ They were the best fireworks—just my emotions going up in the air. It was really neat that I got to savor that. There were tears of joy in that moment.”

A Minnesota native, Hurst worked her way to Oklahoma after college. She had been there before for high school nationals with her sister PJ Burger.

“We came down here for Nationals and I just couldn’t believe that around every corner was a horse event!” she said. “It wasn’t like that where I was from, so I just had to figure out how to get here. After college, I just kept migrating.”

Hurst made it down to Oklahoma, met and married her husband Clay, and set up her training business, specializing in tune-ups and high-end horse sales. It was through her brokering business that she found Diddy.

Bred by Jud Little, Diddy is by the late Sticks An Stones, a two-time NFR sire, out of the Cash Not Credit, Fire Water Flit mare Top Bug Cash, who was an AQHA World Show Finalist in the junior heading. Jackie Brand, who owned the gelding, had contacted Hurst about selling him.

“He was her baby,” said Hurst. “She loved this horse. She just told me, ‘Ivy, he’s wasting with me. He has so much more to give. I owe it to him to give him the chance to go to someone that will really let him shine.’”

Although she didn’t know it at the time, Hurst didn’t know that someone was her.

“I’ve always really liked this horse,” Hurst said. “He’d run a 16.6 on standard pattern in Arizona. Honestly, I knew the horse had what it took.”

Although she told several girls about him, she didn’t have anyone jump, so she started hauling him to rodeos.

“He started placing and doing really good,” she said. “I ran him at Hill City, Kansas, and he threw a run down there and ended up winning second. Went to Dodge City from there. He ran a 17.1 and a 17.2 on Standard (Pattern), but I caught barrels both rounds. But I just knew...you just don’t run those kinds of times on any old horse. I knew if I could just figure out how to get this horse around the barrels, he’s going to win.”

Even though Hurst purchased Diddy herself, it wasn’t an instant fit.

“He wasn’t easy,” she said. “I hit a lot of barrels in the beginning. It came down to using my feet. I had to buy a little bit longer spur and start learning to really use my feet when I ran. From that point, about February on, things started taking a turn for the amazing better.”

Now, Diddy has enabled Hurst to focus on her rodeo dreams, even it means taking things “day-by-day.”

“I’d really like to make the NFR,” she said. “It’s something that’s eluded me. Something has always gone wrong—horses got crippled. I’m very realistic so I’m going to take it day by day. He’s showed me this week that he can do it, so we’re just going to keep making runs and see what happens.”

“No. 1, I’d love to make Finals. No. 2, this horse, in my opinion, would really excel at Houston. I just can’t wait to run him there, so I’m definitely going to try to get into the building rodeos. I’m not going to try to get ahead of myself and take it day-by-day and run-by-run.”

Hurst ran at the Greeley Independence Stampede in Colorado on Monday night before making an all-night drive to Red Lodge, Montana, for slack the Home Of Champions Rodeo on Tuesday morning. The Cody Independence Stampede in Wyoming, the Livingston Roundup in Montana and the Black Hills Roundup in Belle Fourche, South Dakota, conclude her Fourth of July run.

"I get a little bit of a break after that," said Hurst, who is hauling alone. "I kind of wished I had entered St. Paul (Oregon) and all that, but I can only do so much with one horse. This isn't so much with the driving between these rodeos."

Hurst wanted to thank her husband Clay for his continued support, saying, "He has a pretty steady job taking care of a bunch of cattle. It's nice to have an income that's consistent while I'm out here spending stuff. So, he's taking care of things at home. He's been a huge support." She also wanted to thank her veterinarian Josh Harvey of Outlaw Equine. "He has been a part of my team and kept my horses going."

Headin' For Home

by Sherry Morrison
Triple M (Mike Morrison Ministries)

Happy 4th of July! What a great country we live in! I am so thankful for the men and women who have served, and are serving, this country. I'm humbled by those who have given their life so I can be free.

My dad enlisted when he was 17...seems unthinkable these days. But let's not forget to thank the one man who paid the ultimate price for you and me. Jesus. He went to hell so you and I wouldn't have to. He paid the price on the cross for every sin you and I would ever commit. He gave His life so you and I could live forever in heaven with Him, if we ask Him to be our Lord.

Romans 10:8-10. That's quite a deal really. We didn't have to fight, we didn't have to bleed. He did it all for you and me. We are priceless to Him!

As we celebrate this week, thank a serviceman. But please don't forget to thank Jesus for all He did. For whom the Son sets free, is free indeed! John 8:36.
