Pozzi-Pharr Breaks Regular Season Record

Brittany Pozzi-Pharr, of Victoria, Texas, has broken the regular-season record for earnings in professional barrel racing – with nearly six weeks of competition still on the calendar.

Pozzi-Pharr's total of $132,243 through Aug. 20 is more than $50,000 ahead of her nearest competitor in barrel racing and the second highest in all of rodeo, trailing only all-around cowboy Trevor Brazile's $180,029.

A fourth-place finish in the two-round average last weekend at the Caldwell (Idaho) Night Rodeo boosted Pozzi-Pharr past the record of $130,996 set by Sherry Cervi in Women's Professional Rodeo Association events in 1999. Cervi still holds the single-year record of $245,369 – also in 1999 – which includes earnings from the regular season and Wrangler National Finals Rodeo.

Pozzi-Pharr holds the rookie record for barrel racing earnings with the $79,076 she won in 2003 WPRA events and came within about $1,500 of Cervi's regular season record a year ago with $129,379 heading to the Wrangler NFR.

"I wasn't aware of the record until after the season was all over last year," Pozzi-Pharr said. "I found out by going on Sherry Cervi's Web site. She had all the details posted there. When I started to get up around $100,000 in July this year the record became kind of a goal.

"There hasn't been a whole lot of recognition for something like this, but it's kind of a nice thing. It's a sign I've been having a pretty decent year."

Pozzi-Pharr, most often riding her standout horse, Stitch, has won 11 of the 52 rodeos she's entered this season, including Cheyenne (Wyo.), Denver, Fort Worth (Texas) and Tucson (Ariz.). That's an average of $2,543 per rodeo in Professional Women's Barrel Racing-sanctioned events.

The PWBR is a subsidiary of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association which was formed last fall.

Pros and Cons of Equine Herbal Supplements

By Stacey Oke, DVM, MSc

According to a newly released scientific review, there is only limited evidence supporting the administration of herbal supplements in horses, despite their widespread use in the industry.

Further, adverse events associated with herbal supplementation are an under-recognized and potentially serious issue. Carey A. Williams, PhD, and Emily D. Lamprecht from the Equine Science Center at Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey reported that only a select few herbs have been included in peer-reviewed, published research trials performed in horses. These include:

- Echinacea as an immune stimulant
- Devil's claw (included in an herbal mixture) as an anti-inflammatory agent in osteoarthritis
- Flaxseed for protection against laminitis, improved cardiovascular health, and a decrease in allergic skin disease
- Garlic for decreasing the respiratory rate in horses with COPD
- Ginger during exercise to reduce recovery times
- Yucca is a popular ingredient in oral joint health supplements and is touted to decrease respiratory problems (such as chronic obstructive pulmonary disease), yet no studies evaluating this herb have been performed in the horse.

"While data supporting the use of herbal supplements has been obtained for other species, including humans, more research is needed in horses," Williams stated. "At present, most herbal supplements are advertised and utilized based on anecdotal evidence and testimonials only."

According to Williams, horse owners and trainers need to carefully consider both financial and safety issues when deciding whether to use an herbal supplement in their horse.

"Considering the potential side effects, the horse's purpose, breed, age, sex, general health, reproductive status, current diet, and pharmaceutical usage should all be taken into account prior to initiating an herbal supplement regimen," Williams said.

The abstract for this study, titled "Some commonly fed herbs and other functional foods in equine nutrition: a review" is currently available on PubMed www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/sites/entrez.

The full text article will be available in an upcoming edition of The Veterinary Journal.

Two Outstanding Prospects for Sale

Onahigh Speed Chase

Onanotherhigh si 95 x Chasin the Rainbow si 92, Easy Saint si 107

"Primer" is a 2004 filly with some ground work but not broke to ride. Very flashy blue roan color. She should be a very capable horse with a lot of talent. Her sister was a PRCA calf horse and ran 2D times within a month of starting her on the barrels. Her dam is an own daughter of Easy Saint, who's dam is La Jolla, also the granddam of Streakin La Jolla. $2,800. Video Available.

Hummers Candy Can

Humbolt Duster x Indians Katie Girl, One Tuff Indian

This is a 2003 well started, gentle paint mare. She is about 15'1 with enough body to run barrels, rope calves, or anything you want to do. She is calm and will be gentle for anyone with a little riding experience. We still have her in a snaffle. $4000

Headin' For Home

By Mike Morrison, Triple M (Mike Morrison Ministries)

A lot of people want more faith but don't know how to get it. You can have as much faith as you want. It's up to you. How much Word you put in your heart is how much faith you're going to have available when you really need it.

Did you know you have a heart account filled with faith? You need to make lots of deposits so the spiritual resources will be there when you need them and that could be at most any time.

Use your Bible to make deposits every day because faith comes by soaking up the Word of God. Blessings from God won't flow into your life unless you put yourself out a little to bring those blessings about. The Bible tells us that without faith it is impossible to please God but with faith, all things are possible.

I don't know about you but, I sure want to please God and receive everything He wants to give me to live a happy, healthy and prosperous life. Just don't expect great things to happen in your life without faith in a good God. Don't forget who created all things and that He has a purpose for every life.

The most important thing you can do is fill up your heart with God's Word until your account is overflowing. Everything in your life will turn out all right if you do what Jesus said in Matthew 6:33. He said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." He was talking about all the things we need to live at peace in this world.

God knows what our needs and wants are but He's not going to just dump them on us unless we do our part by believing and following His written Word in the Bible. The Word works. Get busy and put it to work in your circumstances.

So start filling up your faith account today and watch how God works things out for you. And then you'll see your faith grow even more, too.

Mike Morrison and his wife Sherry are ordained ministers in their own non-denominational church in Gillette, WY. They also travel widely as circuit riders ministering over a large area of the western states.
