Murray & Lil Gracie Dude Dominate in Dodge City

By Tanya Randall

WPRA rookie Elizabeth ("Tillar") Murray and her 15-year-old gelding Lil Gracie Dude ("Tic Tac") topped the historic Dodge City Roundup Rodeo. Murray and Tic Tac won all but the first go, in which they finished eighth, to earn $8,304.

"Tic Tac worked really well and that was a huge blessing," said Murray. "At the beginning of the summer, he got hurt right after Reno when he kicked the stall and cut his leg. He was out for the first four weeks of the summer. I got him back and ran him a Nampa (Idaho). It's a huge blessing that he came back really well from his injury."

Tic Tac, a solid Paint, is by Smart Lil Crimson out of Gracies Doll, by Buster Welch. Murray purchased the gelding five years ago from Bailey Bankston of Paris, Texas. Bankston had done really well on Tic Tac in the United Professional Rodeo Association when Murray asked if he was for sale.

"I felt so fortunate when we got him," Murray said. "It was a huge blessing. Before I got him, I couldn't even qualify for the state high school finals and two years after I bought him I won the Texas State High School Finals on him. It was really neat to have him throughout high school and now running at pro rodeos on him."

Murray, an incoming Freshman business major at the University of Texas in Austin, didn't grow up in a rodeo family. She learned to ride at her grandparent's ranch near Houston. When her family moved from Dallas to Fort Worth, seven years ago, the proximity to their place in Lipan, Texas, made riding horses more feasible.

She said that legendary trainers Ed and Martha Wright have had a profound impact on her barrel racing, saying that as a "city girl" she didn't know anything until she started working with them.

"I have to give a huge thank you to them," she said. "They've been a huge help for the past several years. I wouldn't be doing anything close to what I'm doing without them. When I first started riding, I was barely loping the pattern. To have them help me along the way has been a huge blessing. Ed helped me get with Tic Tac. Martha is so sweet. Throughout the summer, she helped me so much. I called her all the time because I had never really hauled that far. I wouldn't have been able to do it without their help along the way."

Murray also wanted thank her parents, especially her father for spending the summer on the road with her.

"It wasn't just my dad, it was my mom and sisters too," she said. "It really does take a whole team to make it work."

She also gave a shout out to her sponsor Myristol Pro.

"Tic Tac is 15-year-old and I really believe that Myristol Pro has really helped him out," she said.

Surprisingly, Murray hadn't planned on getting her WPRA Card until after she finished college, but Tic Tac made her change her mind.

"Tic Tac is so special," she said. "I basically learned to ride on him. I knew he was special enough to go to the pro rodeos so I just decided to go ahead and buy my card. It's been a really neat experience to be able to do it with Tic Tac while he's still relatively young. We didn't go really hard this summer. We kind of hiked around and explored the towns. We had a great time."

For more information contact Casey Wyatt, 573.718.1301.

Diaz Sets Dodge City Roundup Arena Record

The third time was a charm for saddle bronc rider Isaac Diaz, who even surprised himself when he rode for an arena record 93 points on Frontier Rodeo's Medicine Woman to win the Dodge City (Kan.) Roundup (July 29 through Aug. 2).

Diaz won the final round by a whopping six points and took the two-head average with 173 points.

"This was the third time I've had her," Diaz said of Medicine Woman, the two-time Saddle Bronc Horse of the Year (2011, 2014). "This was by far the best she's ever been for me. She was phenomenal."

Diaz rode Medicine Woman for 87 points to split the win in Corpus Christi, Texas, earlier this season, and split third in his other trip on her.

Medicine Woman carried Wade Sundell to the Dodge City Roundup arena record of 92 points just one year ago.

Diaz was ecstatic after setting the arena record.

"I'm on Cloud 9," he said. "This was my career best, too. I didn't even know I was capable of going 93."

It was the second-highest scored saddle bronc ride of the season, behind the 94-point ride of Spencer Wright on Beutler & Son's Rebel Soul in a preliminary round at Rodeo Austin (Texas) in March.

Diaz had tied for fourth in the first round in Dodge City before setting a personal best with his 93-point ride. His previous high was 91 points on Flying 5 Rodeo's Spring Planting, the 2009 Saddle Bronc Horse of the Year, in Ellensburg, Wash., two years ago.

It was the first win at the Dodge City Roundup for the 28-year-old cowboy from Desdemona, Texas.

"I finished second here twice," Diaz said. "Billy Etbauer got me by a point one year (2008) and J.J. Elshere beat me a year earlier."

Like many cowboys, he grew up hearing about the famous western Kansas rodeo.

"It's awesome to win here," he said. "You hear about Dodge City when you're a little kid and you dream of winning here. In a bronc rider's mind, Cheyenne (Wyo.), here and Ellensburg are the best short rounds all year long because of the stock they have. Guys just know when they're coming into the short round at those rodeos that they have a chance to go 90 because of the stock."

Diaz earned $4,684 in Dodge City to add to his already successful season. He sat ninth in the Aug. 3 Windham Weaponry High Performance PRCA World Standings with $62,886.

He's on track to qualify for his fifth Wrangler National Finals Rodeo. He made it to Las Vegas in 2007 (eighth in the world), 2009 (11th) and 2012-13 (10th both years).

"This year has been unbelievable," Diaz said. "I've drawn better than ever, it seems, and I'm riding better than ever. I put my faith in God and I know he's with me at all times. My faith is everything to me."

His wife of 21 months, barrel racer Britany (Fleck) Diaz, was 18th in the July 20 world standings but recently slipped just out of the top 20 after her horse was hurt. She qualified for the WNFR in 2011 and '14.

"We'll make it the same year one of these times," Isaac Diaz said. "That'd be a dream to go together."

Other winners at the $322,324 rodeo were all-around cowboy J.D. Yates ($1,648 in team roping and steer roping), bareback rider Matt Bright (164 points on two head), steer wrestler Stockton Graves (12.0 seconds on three head), team ropers David Key and Martin Lucero (16.5 seconds on three head), tie-down roper Caleb Smidt (27.0 seconds on three head), barrel racer Tillar Murray (51.34 seconds on three head), steer roper Scott Snedecor (36.8 seconds on three head) and bull rider Aaron Pass (176 points on two head). --Courtesy of www.ProRodeo.com

Murray also worked the Abilene, Kansas, rodeo between her runs at Dodge City. She placed sixth there for $708 aboard Say Hello To Goodbye (“Big John”). She’s currently 41st in the WPRA World Standings with $26,965.

Although she plans on making a few easily accessible rodeos—like Lawton, Okla., and Lovington, N.M., Murray is looking forward to starting business school. “It’s bittersweet, going home, but it’s been a lot of fun. It was a great experience to haul all summer. I’m sure the horses are looking forward to the break. I move to Austin in two weeks. I think it will be a nice change.”

Red Hot Rookies

One of the most hotly contested races for 2015 is WPRA’s Rookie of the Year. With a separation of just $6,300 amongst them, four ladies legitimately have a shot at the title and also a chance to qualify for the WNRF. Which of the four is currently No. 1 changes almost weekly.

Going into August, Abilene, Texas’ Jackie Ganter has jumped into the catbird seat after a $9,800 weekend, placing third in the average at Dodge City with Blazin Baby J and winning Phillipsburg with Cartels Fame. She currently sit 15th in the World Standings with $47,856 and leads the rookie contention. Ganter will work the lucrative rodeos of Lawton, Okla., ($10,000 added) and Lovington, N.M., ($12,501 added) before returning for the Northwest run.

With her mom, Michele McLeod, entered in the Champions Challenge in Cody, Wyo., Katelyn McLeod is staying “out west” for the lucrative rodeos leading up to the rich Northwest run. The Whitesboro, Texas, rookie, who won Grace, Idaho, this past weekend, is barely $5,000 back of Ganter.

Rookies Vickie Carter, Richfield, Utah, and Brittney (“Paige”) Willis, Goshen, AL, are virtually neck-and-neck in 20th and 21st, respectively. Carter, who won Great Falls, Montana, over the weekend has $42,556. Willis, who won Hill City, Kansas, has $41,527.

The Final Push

While the rookie race maybe tight, the run for the NFR is extremely close as well. It’s not likely that it will take as much money as it did in 2014 to make the Finals, but from No. 8 in the world on down, the race is extremely close.

At this point last year, it took another $12,000 than Ganter’s $47,856 to sit 15th in the world. The standings were top heavy with several ladies at or above the $100,000 mark. This year the bottom eight barrel racers are stacked and thus, it’s likely to keep changing until the last rodeos eight weeks from now.

Other than ducking down for a few rodeos like Lawton and Lovington—and Sikeston, Mo., if possible, the bulk of the money to be won is in the Columbia River and Wilderness Circuits in the Northwest.

Entry guru Ann Thompson said she has a few barrel racers making the Sikeston, Lawton, Lovington run like Jana Bean, who is on the cusp of her second NFR qualification in 18th with $43,845, while others like Michele McLeod is staying North due to the Champions Challenge.

“It all depends on the girls, what arena’s their horse’s like and where they can do well,” said Thompson, a three-time NFR qualifier who got six ladies to the NFR last year. “Jackie and them, we talked about it and they’re doing Lawton and Lovington and then turning around and going right back up there (to the Northwest). Michele’s staying up there because it doesn’t make any sense for her to turn around and have to go right back up for Cody. She can pick up Hermiston ($13,500 added) and a couple of other good rodeos up there. They’re all good rodeos.”

Upcoming big paying rodeos in the Northwest include $8,000-added Omak, Wash., $18,500-added Caldwell, Idaho (watch for Nancy Hunter and Flit N Fizz at this one), $7,500-added Canby, Ore., $9,000-added Kennewick, Wash.

Thompson said some will likely head back south the middle of September for the $11,000-added in Albuquerque, N.M., Abilene, Texas, and Pasadena, Texas, with its $10,000-added on the other side of the state.

Headin' For Home

by Sherry Morrison
Triple M (Mike Morrison Ministries)

Do you ever wonder when you read the Bible just exactly what is meant by some of the phrases used? I do. One of them for me was I Peter 2:9 where it says we are a “chosen generation, a royal priesthood....a PECULIAR people”. I don’t know about you but for years it was all about being like everyone else. Peculiar? No way. I dressed like my friends, talked like my friends, roached my horses’ mane and pulled their tails to hock height (yes, back in the day we actually did that!!!). It was about not sticking out. NO ONE wanted to look or act different. Just be the same, act the same.

But our loving God is NOT about us all being alike. He knew us in our mothers’ womb and we are fearfully and wonderfully made by Him. Those personality traits we have and how we look, are our gift to others. If you and I were exactly alike, one of us would be unnecessary.

Being “peculiar” to God means to be set apart. We act and react different than everyone else. When adversity comes our way, we count it all joy like it tells us to in James 1:2. We don’t pout or throw a fit. That’s peculiar. We don’t murmur and complain. Phil. 2:14. That’s not easy to do when you don’t like the ground your horse is running in and everyone else is blaming their bad run on the producer. That’s peculiar. Being peculiar is just acting a better way than the world around you does. We have hope, most of the world does not.

And the way we dress??? Well, my husband has never cared what people thought about him. It was and is an anointing that I am not yet familiar with. Why, just the other day riding bikes in an effort to streamline our physiques, I noticed what Mike was wearing as he pedaled past me.....wranglers, western belt, cowboy boots and a ball cap. And that was.....interesting! LOL!

God bless you and help you to be YOU!
