Nellie Miller & Rafter W Minnie Reba Capture RAM National Circuit Finals Rodeo Title

By Tanya Randall

2017 WPRA World Champion Nellie Miller added RAM National Circuit Finals Rodeo Champion to her resume after winning the COVID-rescheduled event, held September 10-13 in Greeley, Colorado. The Cottonwood, California, barrel racer rode her family-raised 12-year-old mare Rafter W Minnie Reba ("Sister") to $11,155 in earnings.

"I felt like it was the first arena I've been to this year that's really fit her," said Miller, who wanted to thank her family and sponsors for their continued support through this challenging year. "We've gone to a lot of places we had never been before up until now. Greeley just really fits her style."

Miller had entered the Greeley Independence Stampede during the Fourth of July run a few times before in the past, but she never had much luck.

"It was just always weird stuff that would happen," she said. "I always knew she could do good there if I ever got the opportunity. Being there for (the RNCFR), I was really looking forward to it because I thought she would do good there."

A past California Circuit Champion, Miller had qualified for the RNCFR as the reserve champion in the circuit after Megan Champion won both the year-end and average titles at the conclusion of the California Circuit Finals Rodeo in 2019.

At Greeley, Miller and Sister turned in the first and third fastest time of the event. They placed third in the first round with a 17.28, sixth in the second round with a 17.44 and tied for third in the average.

After the two rounds, the top eight in the average advance to a semifinal. The top four from the semifinal make up the championship round.

In the semifinal, Miller and her roan rocket posted the fastest time of the event, a 17.11, to win the round of eight. Running last in the finals, they clocked a 17.19 to claim the title.

"They worked so hard on the ground," she noted. "I think they had some new equipment that they were using. It had snowed the day before, so we were all wondering what it would be like. They worked really hard to get it good. It was really awesome ground."

Although she won a nice chunk of change, money from the RNCFR doesn't count toward the WPRA World Standings. Miller currently sits 45 in the standings with $14,144 won after entering 26 rodeos.

The severe lockdown on the West Coast completely ruined Miller's regular routine. COVID forced her to attend many new rodeos this year.

"None of our California rodeos happened this year, which hurt us,” she said. “I haven’t felt like anything has really fit my horse. I’m glad that I know what those rodeos are like for horses I may have in the future. As far as Sister goes, I think our regular track is more suited to her.

Sister, a daughter of KS Cash N Fame out of Espuela Roan, by Blue Light Ike, prefers her rodeos along the Pacific Coast in the California and Columbia River Circuits that typically have a longer run on firmer footing.

“She’s used to those kinds of arenas and that type of ground,” Miller said. “Everything further East is a little deeper and she struggles a little in deep ground. Nothing really suited her this year, but that’s just the way it goes.”

Like many competitors this summer, Miller was able to take advantage of a slower schedule and fit family activities with her two daughters along the way.

“It was like the Great Family Road Trip, really,” she laughed. “The kids had a great time. We went and visited Bear Country in South Dakota. My brother lives in Arkansas and he always comes out to visit us in California. This year, we were able to go spend some time with him. We did a lot of cool things, and it was cool to see the different things they did at the different rodeos. That part of it was fun.”

Miller is currently headed to Gooding, Idaho, her last planned rodeo of the season. It’s possible that her strong performance at RNCFR bumped her high enough in the ProRodeo Tour Standings that she’s eligible to compete at the Gold Buckle Beer ProRodeo Tour Finale in Rapid City at the end of September. Should she make the cut Rapid will be her last rodeo for the 2020 season.

THE RACE TO THE FINISH...

There are only 2 weeks left in the 2020 WPRA Barrel Racing season and the race to secure a spot in the Top 15 and run at this year’s very unique NFR setup in Globe Life Field in Arlington, TX is in full swing. The fight for the last 2 spots has tightened up heading into the last 15 days. Ivy Hurst currently sits in the 14th position with $35,794 and only $59 back in #15 is Brittney Barnett with $35,735. Ryann Pedone is just $576 back of Barnett in #16 and Jessie Telford is just $3437 behind Barnett in the #17 position. So 4 girls are going to battle it out for 2 elusive spots. Also with the amount of money available at Rapid City, SD ProRodeo Tour Finale, whoever gets into that rodeo has the chance to jump up in the standings and could give #18 & #19 cowgirls, Ashley Castleberry & Kathy Grimes a chance at jumping up in the mix. Buckle up it is going to be a wild couple weeks! Only 15 rodeos remain!

Paul Humphrey's Phase One, Drill Three

By Tanya Randall

Clinician Paul Humphrey has an entire program designed to help horses and riders with the proper collection and connection needed to produce the correct movement through the barrel pattern.

"The one thing that I feel is most important is keeping forward motion in the horses," he says. "A lot of time through training or issues that come up, the movement gets taken out. You always have to be working on that movement, but it has to be the right kind of movement. The body has to be connected or you're not going to get the right kind of movement."

Movement doesn't mean go faster. When a horse is using its body correctly, the movement is powerful and efficient. In slow work, you're creating the control that will later become speed.

Humphrey's program goes through a series of phases—from the very basics at Ground Zero to the advanced training of Phase Three. All his drills are work on collection and connection needed to produce easy, efficient movement that become power and speed in a finished horse.

The following drill—Drill Three of his Phase One can be used on young or finished horses. The basic premise of this drill, and many of Humphrey's early stage drills, is developing correctness in a bigger circle before applying it to a smaller circle around the barrel.

"So many things happen in that big circle," he says. "You're not just loping a circle. You need to work on the weak part of the horse. If they're having trouble dropping their shoulder in that big circle, you work on that."

Taking it in smaller is applying that movement to the barrel.

He uses the example of working on shoulder control, one of the most common training problems.

"A lot of people will do things to correct shoulder control but they don't apply it to the barrel, so the horse doesn't understand," he says. "My first circle is out there and then I take that movement into the barrel. I'm applying what I'm doing in the big circle to going around the barrel. If you don't bring the barrel into the equation, you're not going to succeed with that horse understanding what you're working on."

The Drill

Drill Three uses the basic barrel pattern with poles and pylons to serve as guides. Cones are placed two steps from the sides and back of the barrel. Poles are set by walking two steps toward the center of the arena or work area and the taking seven steps out to either side of the barrel. (See diagram).

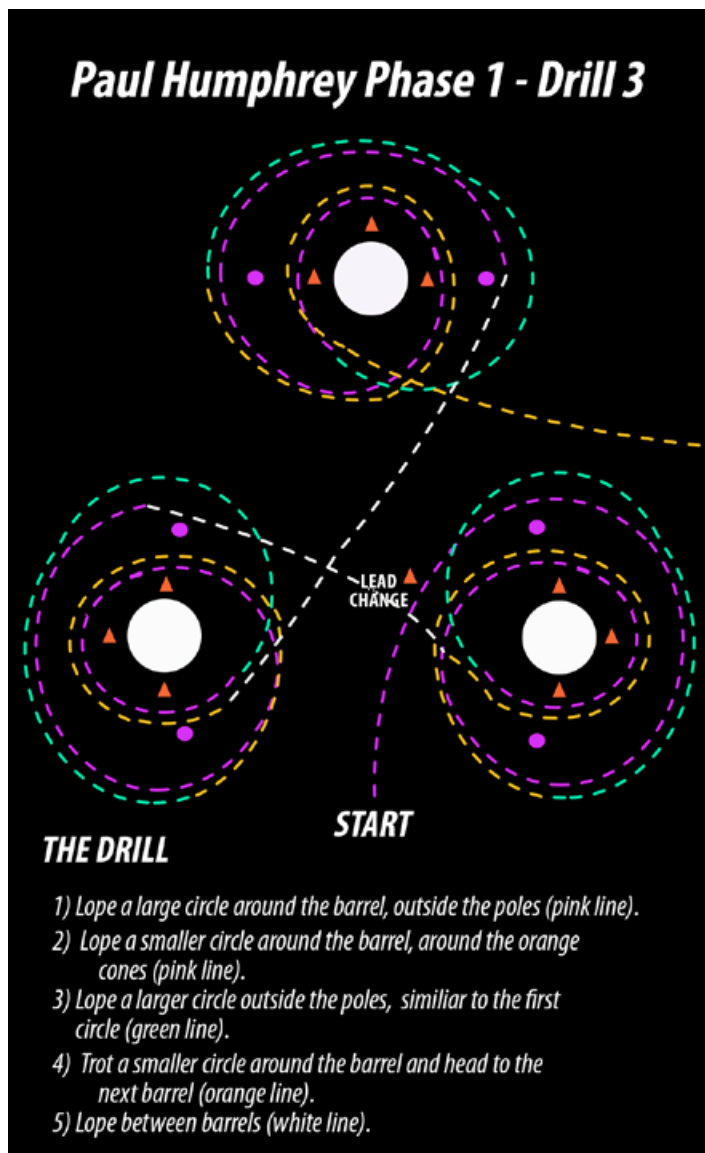

Starting a lope, you make a big circle first, staying outside the poles. In the big circle you want correct shape and motion, as you complete the big circle come in and lope a circle inside the poles and around the barrel.

"You're opening up the movement by taking it to the big circle first," he says. "Whether you have a seasoned horse that's run or a young horse that you're just training, it affects each horse differently. With a young horse, it takes the cheat out of the barrel. They don't mean to; they're just trying to do their job. With an older horse, it reinforces that movement."

You should be focused on loping a circle around the barrel rather than making a barrel turn. You want a correct fluid circle—a mirror image of your correct larger circle just in a smaller circle around the barrel.

"Once you open that movement up, you take it and apply to a circle around the barrel," he explains. "I always say circle around the barrel because that's what it is, it's not a barrel turn. I believe a horse only gets to 'turn' the barrel when you make a run. That keeps the horse from cheating too. None of my drills are about turning the barrel, it's all about the movement."

Finish your smaller circle around the barrel by maintaining that same shape and motion back out into the big circle. As you approach the pole near the finish of the barrel, break to a sitting trot and circle the barrel again.

"When you go in there and lope the barrel and everything feels good, people want to know why you go back out to the big circle if they did it right," he explains. "I go back out to the big circle just to let them relax, and then I add the trot in there to remind them we've got to shorten the stride, we've got to collect and connect and now we're just going to relax around the barrel."

It's also important to have a sitting collected trot, not a reaching posted trot.

"There's no posting involved because if you're posting around the barrel, you're asking for extension," he says. "I don't believe we want extension around the barrel, we want connection and collection so they can drive around the barrel."

Should your horse fail to execute either of the small turns correctly, go back to the big circle to make your corrections.

"If we struggle at the barrel, we're going out to the big circle," he says. "The big circle is where you work on everything. I don't work on anything at the barrel, I'm going to take it out and work on it and then I'm going to take it into the barrel. That way, the barrel is the happy place because it's very easy for them to move around it when you have everything correct."

<<HOT TIP>>

Working Bridle versus Competition Bridle

Humphrey prefers to do his training with working bridles, the ones you're more likely to find in a cowhorse trainers arsenal.

"A working bridle is not a barrel racing bridle," he says. "Working bridles need to come from the working discipline. You've got to get out of your barrel racing box and go look at cowhorse bridles. That's where you're going to find good balanced bits with the curb chain where it's supposed to be. It really allows you to get that feel in a horse's face that most barrel racers want, they just don't know how to get it."

"When you're working on a horse's face, you want something that when you add pressure it's going to give them the feeling of I can give to this because the pressure points are in the right place. If you have an O-ring on to do your slow work and that horse wants to push and lean on you, they can do that. I think you need to be more structured in your working bridle and then your competition bridle is going to be a lot lighter than what you think."

Fore! Fairway Ta Fame & Sara Winkleman are Fizz Bomb Classic Futurity Champions

By Tanya Randall

Sara Winkleman and her homebred 5-year-old gelding Fairway Ta Fame ("Rory") turned in two consistent runs to win the $20,000-added Rodeo Rigs 2D Futurity at the Fizz Bomb Classic, held September 10-13 in Gillette, Wyoming. The victory was worth $9,786 including their carryover 1D earnings.

"You go somewhere with the expectations that you can do well, and then to have everything go the right way...being able to come out with the win was very cool," said Winkleman. "I really believe in my horse a lot. He hasn't been everywhere, but the feel he gives me...I feel he can win in a lot of places and setups. I'm really excited about his future."

Winkleman and Rory were fourth in the first round with a 14.913 and were just a tick faster in the second round to place third with a 14.817.

"I was pretty pleased with both runs," she said. "I had in my mind for him to be under 15 seconds. That was my goal and I was really proud about that. He had some ground trouble, actually, in both runs. He tripped, stumbled and fumbled here and there, but he has so much heart that he'll keep trying no matter what happens."

Rory has a special place in Winkleman's heart. She bred the gelding by Streaking Ta Fame out of her former barrel horse Fair Lady Perks, by Perks Alive.

"She was a really nice mare that I ran when I lived in Oklahoma," Winkleman said of Fair Lady Perks. "She had some little, nagging issues that kept her from being more successful than she was. I was going to give her a little time off, so I called Joleen (Hales). Breeding wasn't really on my radar and I hadn't really budgeted for it or anything. I thought since Joleen has Perks Alive that she might work with me on a breeding to Streaking Ta Fame."

Winkleman was so impressed with Rory that she bred the mare back to Streaking Ta Fame. Sadly, she lost both the mare and foal.

"It was a huge heartbreaker," she said. "The mare was a loving, sweetheart of a horse, just a really cool mare. Rory has that same personality. He's such a lover. He's so connected to my heart. As soon as he started to come on I thought, 'Oh no! Someone is going to really like him and offer me a stupid amount of money. What am I supposed to do then?' He's just so a part of my heart."

The good-minded gelding was also started and trained around the birth of Winkleman's two children, both under the age of 3.

"I had saddled him some as a long yearling and chucked him around the roundpen some, and then I was pregnant," explained Winkleman, who grew up training and competing with her family. "I had a friend that I trusted put some basic ride time on him. She has a reining background. I had a tiny break between the two kids where I got him patterned a little bit. I just had to work around those pregnancies."

Despite the periodic breaks in his training, Rory made Winkleman's job an easy one.

"He's so easy and has such a cool feel," she said. "From that very first ride, you just know he has what it takes. His conformation is really balanced so it's really easy for him. He's strong in the hip and shoulder. It was always easy for him. He progressed at a steady rate and never had any slips backwards."

Winkleman, who resides in Big Lake in central Minnesota, hasn't Winkleman does plan to travel a little further afield since Rory is doing so well. She also plans on going to Oklahoma for the Ardmore Futurity and BFA later in the year. "Since he's a 5-year-old, I'll run him in the Derby at BFA," she said. "They added that 5-year-old incentive for the futurity horses running in the derby this year, so I'm really excited about that."

She wanted to thank her family and friends for their support as well as Michelle Mix for doing the body work that keeps Rory feeling happy and healthy.

Julee Daulton's UKnowMyDaddyIsSlick & Molly Otto Top Blue Collar Breeders Bonus at Fizz Bomb

By Tanya Randall

UKnowMyDaddyIsSlick, piloted by Molly Otto for Julee Daulton, topped the $25,000-added Blue Collar Breeders Incentive held in conjunction with the Fizz Bomb Classic Futurity in Gillette, Wyoming.

The victory was worth $8,325 to Daulton and $2,500 to Terry Vogel, who bred the 5-year-old gelding by Slick By Design out of the proven performing and producing Title Contender, Fire Water Flit mare Fiery Contender. "Slick" also picked up $800 in the $5,000-added Blue Collar Breeders Open 4D incentive for total program earnings of $11,625.

"I'm so excited," said Daulton. "He hasn't got to go a whole lot, so he's doing pretty well for the time he's been able to go."

Daulton purchased Slick last June from her friend Layne Larson, who was going back to graduate school. Larson had purchased the gelding from his breeder. Daulton spent the next few months just pleasure riding Slick and occasionally taking him through the cattle on the farm. She sent him to Otto at the end of November.

"She's such a good rider, so quiet," said Daulton. "She gets them so solid on the pattern. I figured those would be the right hands for him to be in."

Slick was loping the pattern when Otto got him but he didn't have much hauling experience.

He's only been to a few futurities this year," said Otto. Slick actually won the Open 3D at the Ruby Buckle—his third time to be entered. "All year I kept thinking I know this colt has it. I know he can do it, he does it every time at home. When we get somewhere he was just a little bit green. This weekend he finally felt so solid and did exactly what he was supposed to do and it was easy.”

The Grand Forks, North Dakota, trainer guided Slick to a 15.221 on his first run and 15.030 on his second in Gillette. It was good enough to win the Blue Collar Breeders and place fifth in the Fizz Bomb Futurity, earning an additional $3,133.

Otto said she made a bit change on Slick, opting to run him in a Kerry Kelley Magnum with the ported mouthpiece.

“I’ve been working him at home in it and he felt really good,” said Otto. “I switched him back to my other bit and just had a little bit of a delayed reaction in his turns in my exhibitions. He still worked really good, but I needed him to quicken up a little bit, so I put (the Kerry Kelley) in his mouth.”

Slick will run for more Blue Collar money at the Ardmore Futurity before the Pink Buckle in October. With the Badlands Circuit Finals conflicting with the Pink Buckle, Otto is turning over Slick’s reins to Josh Seger.

Daulton’s 12-year-old son Trevyn is eager to take over Slick’s reins himself.

“My son would love to run him,” said Daulton. “He loves barrel racing. His dream is to get to the American. We’ll have to see where it goes.”

Trevyn is very dedicated too, having already attended a couple of Phil Haugen clinics to work on his horsemanship.

“One day he wants to become a trainer,” said Daulton. “He’s got big plans.”

Ironically, Daulton, who grew up showing Western pleasure and hunter under saddle, followed her son into barrel racing. Now, she and her children—her two twin daughters Jersey and Taylor—barrel race as well.

“Actually, our neighbors are big into roping,” she said. “My husband brought Trevyn over there when he was little. They took him to these barrel races just so he could do the pee wee. He started and I was like, I really like this, so I started and here I am!”

Slick is Daulton’s first futurity horse, but she has more in the works, including his full sister.

“We’ve got big plans,” she said.

She wanted to thank Otto “for taking Slick and taking such good care of him and teaching him so much. She’s such an amazing trainer. Her horses are so quiet and well mannered. It’s just unbelievable what she can do with them,” and her husband Josh, “he always knew my dream was to pursue a futurity horse and I always wanted to have Molly ride a horse for me. I have to thank him for letting me pursue this dream.”

Wrangler® NFR 2020 Moves to Globe Life Field in Arlington, Texas

The Wrangler® National Finals Rodeo (NFR) is moving to Texas in December 2020! Arlington's Globe Life Field, home of the Texas Rangers, will host the Wrangler NFR 2020 – the first non-baseball event at this extraordinary park. Event organizers confirmed the event will comply with all health and safety protocols for attendees. Wrangler NFR 2020 will take place December 3 through December 12, 2020 and fans can follow official PRCA updates throughout the event at www.prorodeo.com.

"We are so pleased to be at this amazing stadium for the most celebrated event on the rodeo calendar," said George Taylor, chief executive officer of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA). "We are committed to delivering a spectacular event for our fans and we are thrilled to be in Texas for it."

"We are excited for the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo to take place this year at Globe Life Field," said Allen Montgomery, Vice President General Manager, Wrangler Western Wear. "The health and safety of the fans, cowboys and cowgirls is of the highest priority, and we are grateful to the participating organizations for their work to put together a comprehensive plan that will allow everyone to enjoy a safe and fun event."

"We are honored that the PRCA selected Globe Life Field to host the 2020 Wrangler Nationals Final Rodeo and are thrilled to be a small part of bringing this world-class event back to Texas," said Neil Leibman, chief operating officer of the Texas Rangers. Globe Life Field officials have emphasized that recommended health and safety standards are being met. Safety measures will include a mask requirement at all times while inside Globe Life Field and there will be additional hand washing and sanitizing stations throughout the building.

Seats will be sold in groups of four with separation between groups. Contact-limiting measures, such as mobile tickets, have been implemented throughout the event. There will also be metal detector screenings and a no bag policy at entries on performance nights. Globe Life Field is encouraging all guests to check the CDC and the Texas Department of State Health Services websites for any guideline changes prior to the event.

The Arlington and Fort Worth convention and visitors' bureaus and sports commissions are rolling out the welcome for this one-of-a-kind event and both cities have worked hard to bring the Wrangler NFR to Globe Life Field.

"From cattle drives, museums and even the names of our professional sporting teams, our love of cowboy culture runs deep here in Tarrant County," Arlington Mayor Jeff Williams said. "I can think of no better choice for the Super Bowl of rodeo than to be hosted here in the heart of North Texas. Arlington and Fort Worth have so many family friendly attractions and rich experiences to offer rodeo fans who will be traveling from across the country to cheer on these professional cowboys as they strive to set new records and achieve their American Dream in the arena."

Nearby Fort Worth will also play host to the Wrangler NFR 2020 experience, as the annual PRCA Convention will be held November 30 to December 3, 2020, in addition to the Cowboy Christmas and a slew of other fan-favorite events.

"We are a rodeo city and we've roped a big one," Fort Worth Mayor Betsy Price said. "The Wrangler National Finals Rodeo is an incredible win for our region and another example of how Fort Worth can host major events safely during this unprecedented time. This summer, Fort Worth has hosted major, national events in golf, racing and bull riding. Sporting events like the Wrangler NFR are a vital part of our visitor economy that creates jobs and supports our recovery."

The NFR was born in Texas and the first three years of the event were held at the Dallas State Fairgrounds beginning in 1959. Years later, the event moved to Las Vegas and has been staged at the Thomas & Mack Center at UNLV in Las Vegas since 1985. That venue is not available for live entertainment with fans this year due to coronavirus restrictions in Nevada.

In a survey earlier this summer, rodeo fans said overwhelmingly that they wanted an NFR venue that would accommodate fans.

"Part of what makes Globe Life Field work for us is the ability to bring in fans and deliver the full NFR experience," Taylor said.

Organizers pledge to preserve the NFR experience that fans love and that has necessitated a one-year move out of Las Vegas.

The PRCA began looking for an alternate venue earlier in the summer. The State of Texas, the Texas Rangers and Globe Life Field stepped up. Ultimately, this has been a thoughtful partnership between Texas, Globe Life Field, the cities of Arlington and Fort

HEADIN' FOR HOME

by Sherry Morrison // Triple M (Mike Morrison Ministries)

Last week, Mike and I celebrated our 47th wedding anniversary. And two days later he mustered up the courage to tell me something that's been bothering him, obviously for years...it seems I'm NOT good at telling jokes!

Yep! SHOCKED ME! I think I'm hilarious! Well, I'm glad he came clean and we can move forward. Little does he know that when I'm not good at something, I practice. A lot!

So here goes. "Do you know who I saw yesterday? ... Everybody I looked at!" ...LOL! This really does go along with what the Lord wanted me to encourage you with this week.

On Sunday, Pastor Elgin made a statement that I thought was interesting. He said, "Life as a Christian is predictable." I thought about that and tilted my head just right so it would sink in. Life right now is ANYTHING but predictable, for anybody. And just when I thought he had lost his cabbage, he added to it...

... "because what you reap, you sow!" Ahhh, now that's a Bible promise we can stand on! It's Gal. 6:7, but read all of Gal. 6.

It'll do you good! What do we want our tomorrows to look like? If we want good, we sow good. If we want peace, we sow peace. Let's practice, practice, practice sowing good things!

"Wanna know what makes me smile? ... Face muscles!" Ya, ya, I won't quit my day job.
