Loflin "Movin" for NFR Berth at Pendleton

By Tanya Randall

It's go- or go-home time as the 2012 pro rodeo season enters its final weeks of regulation.

For Greeley Independence Stampede Champion Christy Loflin that meant running her diminutive mare Sheza Blazin Move on the monster course at the Pendleton Round-up, held Sept. 12-15 on the infamous football field and track in Oregon.

Against the advice of 1981 World Champion Steer Wrestler Byron Walker, Loflin chose to run "Movin" on the grass and dirt course instead of her colt. Walker had suggested that she send Movin with him and his wife Mary for the last of the southwest swing.

"He told me if I did (rode Movin in Pendleton) I would be putting all my eggs in one basket," said Loflin, who hails from Franktown, Colo. "I had to do well there, or I wasn't even going to have a shot to get into the Top 15 because I was sitting about $8,000 behind." Her Pendleton Championship, worth $9,416 of the $48,165 total purse of which $30,000 was generously added by the committee, jumped her from 21st to 15th in the WPRO World Standings.

"It was an awesome experience," she said. "The people were really great. The prizes were beautiful and really neat." She picked up a slew of prizes, including a Pendleton coat, trophy saddle, Stetson boots, a 20X hat, two necklaces and an engraved knife.

The appeal of Pendleton is that it favors no one. Loflin knew that Pendleton was a gamble for everyone entered.

"I walked on to the arena and felt like I was walking into the gladiator coliseum!" she said. "I was pretty overwhelmed. When you're running across the grass and you hit the dirt, you can feel the difference. The dirt like sticks them. That transition going on to the dirt was different. Then the transition going across to the bucking chute--they're all different colors, so the horses have a hard time seeing the barrel. The third barrel is actually up on a berm. So they have to go across the grass, on to the dirt, up the hill and around."

Without a single practice run on the unique course, Loflin and Movin placed second in the first round.

"From the eye to the first barrel is kind of short," she said. "You can either walk up there or ride up with a pickup man. I thought I hope my mare doesn't think we're just breezing down the track because you're kind of in the wide open. It was definitely an experience."

They placed third in the short for the average victory. "It felt like she kept running harder and harder on her first run," Loflin explained. "She didn't feel like she ran as hard the second run, but it was smoother. She never did weaken. On some of those horses, you could tell after the third or even on the way to third, they were getting tired. I never felt like she quit me at all."

Loflin is currently en route to Albuquerque to rejoin her hauling partners, the Walkers.

"They are the greatest people ever," said Loflin, who is sponsored by Roper Apparel and MVP Products. "I met them at Cheyenne. I actually offered Movin to Mary as backup horse for the finals. I just love her story, and they're just really neat people." Byron, the old road warrior, had another idea. "Byron said, 'What's wrong with you? You're close enough, I can get you there!' So he entered me everywhere," ex-

Kaminski & Lambert Take on Fireball Run

Two-time WPRA world champion barrel racer Kelly Kaminski of Bellville, Texas, and national circuit finals qualifier Laura Lambert of Wiggins, Colo., are teaming together September 22-29 for an eight day, 14 city, 2,200 mile interactive road rally competition known as the FIREBALL RUN. It is an interactive journey, a rolling scavenger hunt across America. The only "Race" is the Race to Recover America's Missing Children.

The Race to Recover America's Missing Children is the largest active recovery effort for missing and exploited children in the country. Each team is assigned a missing child from their home region along with thousands of posters to distribute along the route. A decal featuring the child is affixed to the vehicle, creating a rolling awareness campaign. To date, the effort has assisted in the recovery of 38 missing children.

Kaminski and Lambert - Team 88 "The Cowgirls" have been assigned a missing girl from Pueblo, Colo. - Lucretia Kirbride. She is a 12-year old Caucasian with brown hair, blue eyes and was round 4'5" tall when she went missing in 2011.

"We are excited to compete in this exciting race and I would like nothing more than to be able to find Lucretia," said Kaminski. "As a mother, I can't even imagine what parents go through when their child is missing. Laura and I will do all we can to bring attention to finding Lucretia before, during and after this race. If anyone has information about this little girl we ask that you follow the instructions on the poster and help her be reunited with her family."

The 2012 FIREBALL RUN features women in professional sports as part of the notable cast making up "The Year Girls Rule." Kaminski and Lambert will be competing against Tarah Mikacich, a pro wakeboard champion; Tina Stull, NHRA Super Comp Dragster Driver; Timber Tina, Lumber Jill World Champion from CBS's Survivor and ABC's Extreme Home Makeover; Shea Holbrook, Long Beach Grand Prix winner, as well as an additional 35 teams made up of convention and visitor bureau members, civic leaders, etc.

The participants must solve clues and complete missions in order to successfully navigate the roadways and score points - all while aiding in the Race to Recovery of America's Missing Children. It takes more brainpower than horse power to win this part rally, part game, part cause. The teams and their sponsors are the moving pieces and America is the game board. The production, filmed by Universal Studios Florida, expertly captures the essence, magnitude, and thrill of the adventure and takes the audience on an emotional ride of a lifetime, all the while raising awareness that aids in the recovery of missing children and more familiarity with each teams walk of life.

The Fireball Run is an eight day, 14 city (this includes the lunch stop cities and night stop cities), 2,200 mile interactive road rally that will make overnight stops in: Independence, Ohio - check-in on Sept. 21; Official Green Flag kick-off party on Sept. 22 and with official start of race on Sept. 23; Jamestown, N.Y. - Sept. 23 arrive and depart on Sept. 24; Wellsboro, Pa. - Sept. 24 arrive and depart on Sept. 25; Watertown, N.Y. - Sept. 25 arrive and depart on Sept. 26; Schenectady, N.Y. - Sept. 26 arrive and depart on Sept. 27; Waterbury, CT - Sept. 27 arrive and depart on Sept. 28; Ogunquit, ME - Sept. 28 arrive and depart on Sept. 29; Bangor, ME - arrive Sept. 29.

Fans nationwide will be able to watch LIVE at www.wpra.com and help the ladies solve the clues through the Women's Professional Rodeo Association Facebook page, so be sure to "Like" the page to stay up-to-date with all the latest news and information on this race and help "The Cowgirls" find Lucretia Kirkbride. --Courtesy of www.wpra.com

Team Challenge Event Slated for October 20

The 5th Annual Team Challenge Event is on schedule for the October 20 & 21 in Pasco, WA. The Team Challenge is a favorite for many northwest barrel racers. It includes a $1000 added Saturday Brn4D open and a $2500 added Sunday Brn4D approved open.

The $300 added Team Challenge is comprised five barrel racers per team each paying a $30 entry fee. The fastest combined total time of a team will be the champions. The Team Challenge is paid out in a D format. The more teams the more D's paid. In the past teams have been comprised of foals of certain stallions, of barrel racing clubs, of businesses that wanted to sponsor a team for the advertisement or of just five barrel racers. The team with the best overall theme gets their entry fee paid.

Everyone is welcome to roll into the Open Brn4D race that immediately follows. Entry forms can be found on www.brn4d.com under the race guide or contact Bobo McMillan, 509-520-3756, bobomac@charter.net.

plained Loflin, who has competed in just 43 of the 78 rodeos she's entered thus far. "I'm just going to take it one run at a time and try not to make myself crazy thinking about it."

She also plans on preserving her prized mare in the process. "I am entered up everywhere, but that mare means more to me," she said. "I would rather miss the Finals than run her legs off. She's special to me, not just because she wins, but because she's neat to be around. I just love her. I will not risk her trying to make the Finals."

Movin, a 7-year-old daughter of Blazin Jetolena out of Sheza Cashanova MP, by Sir Cashanova, was raised by Randy Rist and Sue Rist. Randy futurityed the mare before selling her to Natalie Rice. Loflin got Movin from Rice as a 5-year-old.

"She made the circuit finals that first year as a 5-year-old," said Loflin, who rides with the support of her hockey player son, Cole, 10, and Colorado Pro Rodeo Association rookie barrel racing champion daughter Randi, 17. "Each year I've gone a little more. This is the most successful year that I've ever had in my life. If I don't make it, I'm okay with that because I'm set up for next year. If I do ... that's the icing on the cake."

WPRA Explores Drug-Testing Policy

Last week the internet barrel racing community went abuzz with the leakage of a confidential email, detailing potential drug testing guidelines for the Women's Professional Rodeo Association. The details were merely a working outline used to develop a feasible plan in which to enforce a 20-year-old drug rule already present in the WPRA Rule Book.

WPRA President Jimmie Munroe posted a response to the internet buzz, stating, "Despite that information and rumors, no formal rules have been adopted yet. That information represents a preliminary draft of rule and policies constructed by a (WPRA) Board-appointed committee.

"They were using it to gather feedback among themselves. Based on their dialog, they were going to revise it and present it to the Board for discussion."

At the request of concerned WPRA members, the Board established a drug-testing committee in March 2012. Their goal is to find a feasible way to enforce Rule 18.1 that states no horse shall be ridden in competition that has been administered a prohibited substance unless such substances have been administered as a therapeutic measure for the protection of the health of the horse. Prohibited substances are said to include stimulants, depressants, tranquilizers, local anesthetics and masking drugs.

The working guidelines in the email were taken from other associations, like the AQHA and United States Equestrian Federation. Those guidelines represented a "therapeutic use" policy, meaning that as long as a drug is used under the manufacturer's guidelines it is acceptable.

"The members on the board are barrel races too," says Munroe.

"We realize there are certain therapeutic drugs that horses may need at safe and recommended levels to go down the road."

What will not be tolerated are the performance enhancement drugs like those that have tarnished the already struggling Quarter horse racing industry. What those drugs are and how they should be regulated is what the WPRA is currently trying to establish through fact-finding investigations with veterinarians and potentially through exploratory drug tests in the future.

Basically, the WPRA is attempting to join with the majority of equine associations in the United States have already done—develop feasible guidelines, establish a "fact-finding" testing period and fine-tune the process to establish formal, enforceable rule—in order to protect the equine athlete and provide a level playing field for all competitors.

This is a multi-year process. The NCHA, for example, adopted the therapeutic level drug policy set forth by the AQHA and USEF. The first year, 2011, they tested at the three events hosted by the NCHA. The results were shared without punishment and used to refine their rules. Now, a full fledge policy is in place with fines and penalties for various offenses.

The drug-testing issue is an industry wide issue with the National Reined Cowhorse Association, National Reining Horse Association and other breed, enforcing such policies. The WPRA is the first barrel racing association to take up the drug-testing mantle in recent years.

"We are a professional association," says Munroe, "and as leaders in the barrel racing industry, it's something that needs to be done for the welfare of our horses and to maintain fair competition."

Melvin Wins $11K at Fizz Bomb on Hometown Horse

By Julie Mankin

Local barrel racing fans watching the 31st Annual Fizz Bomb Classic Barrel Futurity in Gillette, Wyo., hardly had a chance to see French Streaktovegas run earlier this season, even though his owners – Darren and Kandy Barton – live just outside Gillette on Echeta Road.

But they paid attention when Hallie Melvin of Hermosa, S.D., wrapped up her short-round run on “Streak” last Sunday and won the average by more than four-tenths of a second. The win paid $8,654, plus an additional $2,520 for winning the Future Fortunes incentive.

For Darren Barton, “there was no better place” for his dream to come together. He and his wife, Kandy, were already breeding mares on Kandy’s family’s fifth-generation ranch northwest of Gillette via Echeta Performance Horses. But Darren wanted a true barrel horse program. He had a few colts in training with former Gillette resident Tasha Welsh, who suggested they go get themselves a Streak of Fling out of the Fulton Performance Horse and Production sale in 2009.

At the last minute, they drove down and plunked some cash down on a 2-year-old roan colt by Streak of Fling – the rising star by Streakin Six out of Moon Fling. On his bottom side, French Streaktovegas is out of Barb Westover’s up-and-coming broodmare PC Frenchman’s Flirty – a full sister to Frenchman’s Guy.

“We were buying into two proven programs – Streak of Fling and Frenchman’s Guy,” said Darren.

Bartons sent the roan colt to Oregon native Abby Davis Michaelis, whose family Darren knew through some friends. She trained “Streak” and took him to futurities in Arizona. Welsh then campaigned him in Texas last spring. This summer, Bartons brought the stallion back home to breed, sending him to some Mountain States pro rodeos with Tasha’s sister-in-law, Amanda Welsh, who placed in tough company at Sheridan, Wyo.

For the second half of Streak’s futurity year, Bartons wanted to find the best trainer they could to ride Streak. One of Hallie Melvin’s outside horses, French Gold Charger, sold and that opened up a hole. Melvin was already riding Streak’s full sister, French Streakofbling, at derbies and rodeos this season.

“We knew what this horse’s ability was – he was so focused and gritty,” said Darren. “But his desire to do his job causes him to hit some barrels. Hallie Melvin is an artist. In five weeks, she figured out exactly how to ride him. If she tweaks her wrist a split second too quick, she could hit one; or too late and he’ll get past it a little and snap back and hit it.”

Melvin adjusted a few things on the first barrel and switched bits to a Loomis gag with twisted wire. At the Fizz Bomb, she and Streak won the first round with a 15.9 despite a stumble. Her 15.7 placed third in round two.

“They had a really unfortunate deal happen there when they reversed the order for the second round,” she said.

When the pattern was initially put up on Saturday by the producer himself, the second barrel was set to the inside of the stake, as it had been for the first round. After the first three girls ran, the tractor came in and upon its exit, the hired barrel setter placed that particular can to the outside of the stake.

Several more runs had been made by the time the discrepancy was noticed, so the remainder of the round was run with the barrel to the outside of the stake. While one of the three first runners clocked out of the running, ironically, the other two happened to be Kassie Mowry and Jolene Montgomery. Both laid down blistering runs and their 15.5- and 15.6-second times won first and second in the round, creating quite a stir.

In a truly difficult situation, Scott and Carey Mackey acknowledged the mistake and considered ways to rectify it, reckoning that the error wasn’t the fault of the first runners. They brought two extra horses back to the finals, making it 32, and in the finals, had only Montgomery and Mowry run at the pattern with the second barrel to the outside of the stake to even things up.

At any rate, Melvin nailed the high call-back position. As the last to run in the finals, she knew she had a great chance to win the Fizz Bomb (she’d been second and third in prior years).

“Streak runs really low to the ground and has a drag-your-butt style,” she said. “You just send him in there to his spot and let him do his thing. He’s pretty amazing for a futurity horse because you just ride him like an older horse.”

Mowry finished second in the average on her 4-year-old Confederate Leader filly, Havanna, after winning the second round, for $5,957. She also claimed fourth on JB Quarter Horses’ 4-year-old Chasin Firewater filly (“Scooter”), while third – by a hair – went to Troy Crumrine and his 4-year-old Dash Ta Fame filly Costly Crystal.

Melvin had come back fourth in the finals on Strohscheins' 5-year-old Frenchman's Guy/Dr. Kirk colt What's A Guy To Do, but hit a barrel in the short round. Last week, Melvin had three horses in the top-12 at the 5-State Futurity finals.

"They all have a different style, but I try to keep my riding the same," she said. "The only Frenchman's Guy that's been different is the stud - I have to ride him a lot harder than my other horses because I have to get him up into the barrels, like a rodeo-type horse."

She'll ride Streak at three more futurities before the WPRF World Finals in October, including the Roper Rally in Belle Fourche; the Grid Iron in Huron and the Hawki in Lincoln; then hit November's JB Quarter Horses Creating Legends Futurity in Waco.

As for Bartons, they wouldn't mind seeing Streak literally streak all the way to Vegas and the NFR one day. They also hope to finish the young stallion in calf roping or heeling, and he was busy breeding about 20 mares this season.

"It's been a whirlwind," he said. "But we did the thing we vowed to do - stay in and keep working and keep grinding."

Darren and Kandy, together eight years now and married for two, were plenty nervous on Sunday.

"You can't go make a safe run; you'll hit a barrel," said Darren. "You have to hustle that horse. It was great watching. I feel like Kassie Mowry and Hallie Melvin are two of the top five trainers in the nation."

Headin' For Home

Some times in this world you have to start over. Occasionally you'll have to start over in training a horse or go back to the basics. At times in life you'll have to start over, too.

For example, look at the people who lose everything in a hurricane, flood or fire. These are devastating times and hard to go through. It's good at times like that to turn to the Bible for wisdom and comfort. Read the story of Job and see how God brought him through and blessed him. Read how Paul suffered many afflictions but still He trusted God and was able to serve Him mightily.

Whatever you're going through now, remember you're not alone. It might seem like God is far away but He cares very much about the smallest detail of your life and His mercy and grace are new every day for those who trust Him. Hebrews 11:6 says, "But without faith it is impossible to please Him, for he who comes to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of those who diligently seek Him."

Watch the words of your mouth so you don't speak negative things over your life. Instead, say what God says and He can deliver you out of the worst circumstances. Matthew 17:20 says you can pray in faith according to God's Word and expect Him to move in your behalf. Philippians 4:19 says God supplies all our needs so we can rely on him even if we feel desperate and are at the end of our rope.

Do not let yourself get into fear which is the opposite of faith. God can do all things and, many times, adversity is an opportunity to see God's power and might at work as He delivers you. What the devil and the world intend for evil to you, God can turn to good for you.

So don't be ashamed if you have to start over. Learn from the experience and stand on this Scripture from Romans 8:28, "And we know that all things work together for good to those who love God, to those who are called according to His purpose." That's good news!!
