Two To Go – The Race For the 2020 Wrangler NFR Comes Down To The Wire

By Tanya Randall

Only two rodeos remain for the 2020 Wrangler NFR hopefuls—the Gold Buckle Beer ProRodeo Tour Finale, currently underway in Rapid City, South Dakota, and the $3,000-added Cowboy Capital Of The World Pro Rodeo in Stephenville, Texas, which gets underway with slack on Thursday evening.

The Tour Finale with its $37,600 purse will have the greatest impact on the WPROA Top 15. Each contestant gets two runs in back-to-back performances with the top eight advancing to a Semi-Finals on Saturday. The fastest four in the Semi-Finals will make a second run with the top two positions vying for $4,500 and $3,000, respectively. A nearly mythic clean sweep of the Finale pays $14,530.

Rapid City was only open to the Top 24 in the ProRodeo Tour Standings who had attended at least half (12) of the 24 designated rodeos. Not all that were eligible entered the rodeo, notably World Standings Leader Brittany Pozzi Tonzzi and No. 5 Jill Wilson. The only other member of the top 19 that didn't get into Rapid City was No. 13 Wenda Johnson, who had enough points to make the cut but not enough rodeos to be eligible.

With less than $3,000 separating No. 12 in the world Lisa Lockhart from No. 15 Brittney Barnett, the nearly $40,000 purse at Rapid City should have a huge impact on the World Standings.

Making the race even tighter is only $2,700 separates No. 13 from No. 17.

Nurse practitioner Wenda Johnson is just $177 ahead of Jessie Telford, who surprised even herself by winning $6,178 the second to last weekend of the season to move within the top 15. Telford didn't enter Stephenville, so her season will end in Rapid City, and she makes her first run there on Thursday night.

Just $520 back of Telford in No. 15 is Brittney Barnett, who is in the first set at Rapid City. Thanks to back-to-back runs and a favorable draw, Barnett will end her 2020 quest in her new hometown of Stephenville, Texas, where she's out in Sunday's matinee performance.

Futurity horse trainer Ryann Pedone is $1,312 behind Barnett in 16th. Ivy Hurst is $643 back of Pedone in 17th and $1,955 out of 15th. Since Pedone and Hurst are out in the first set in Rapid, both can make their slack runs in Stephenville on Thursday evening before hopefully returning to Rapid.

Although their odds are longer, Ashley Castleberry and Michelle Alley have a chance to gain the Top 15. Castleberry is $6,955 out of 15th and is out in the second set in Rapid. She also drew well at Stephenville, getting the Sunday matinee performance for her last run of the 2020 season if needed.

Alley, on the other hand, didn't fare as well in the drawing department. She's out in the second set in Rapid, which conflicts with her slack draw in Stephenville. Not wanting to lose her position on the ground at Rapid, she's third out for her first run, she opted to not try to trade to the first set. She's $11,126 back of 15th and would need to nearly sweep the rodeo in Rapid City.

Meanwhile, Johnson is left to try to secure her position through Stephenville. With the economic downturn due to COVID, Stephenville has less added money this year. It's tentatively figured to pay about $2,300 to win.

With tonight's opening performance at Rapid City, Pedone and Barnett are prepared to battle to the very end. Pedone, riding Feel

AIRWAY EQ

"Air-Way EQ has helped maintain my horse's respiratory health, I've noticed clearer sounding airways and greater lung capacity. I use Breathe'O2 paste pre-race, he sounds great warming up and really fires without feeling winded."

Margaret Jones & Smooth Operraider Get The Win At Roper Rally Futurity

By Tanya Randall

Margaret Jones and her homebred 5-year-old gelding Smooth-Operraider (“Badger”) topped the $5,000-added Roper Rally Futurity, held September 17-19 at the Gollhofer Indoor Arena in Belle Fourche, South Dakota.

“I really enjoyed it,” said Jones. “It was really nice of the Gollhofers to open their arena for us. It’s very laid back and a family-run futurity. It’s really special that way. They were really nice.”

Jones and Badger were extremely consistent, placing second in the first round with a 14.385, which also placed them second in the Rodeo Rigs Slot Race, and winning the second round with a 14.338.

“I just tried to be really smooth and not handle him—that’s where I get into trouble,” she said. “He just worked great both runs. He has a lot of heart and try.”

All totaled, Jones picked up $4,927.

Jones, a multigenerational rodeo competitor and mother of two young rodeo athletes from Farson, Wyoming, bred and raised the A Smooth Guy gelding, out of the On The Money Red mare Rare Red Raider.

“I ran his mother for a little bit,” she explained. “It wasn’t a long time, maybe three years or so. She had an injury so we decided to breed her. We thought A Smooth Guy would be a good cross for her.”

She says Badger trained well with a few little hiccups along the way.

“We sent him to James Morgan, who is our colt starter,” she said. “He did a good job starting him. My husband rode him on the ranch quite a bit. He had a lot of go so he got quite a few miles on the ranch.”

I’ve had a little bit of trouble with him shaking his head at speed. Kent McCann, he’s a really good horseman from Rock Springs, he had some ideas for some dry work with speed away from the barrels. So, I did a little of that before the Roper Rally and Fizz Bomb and I think it helped quite a bit.”

When Badger was 4, Jones discovered he had ulcers, and once treated, he settled down quite a bit.

“He wasn’t quite as nervous and go-y,” noted Jones, who has been campaigning futurity horses the past five years.

Badger started his futurity career at the end of December 2019 in Arizona. He's been competitive all year.

"I've hit barrels a lot on the second day, which has cost me for average," Jones said. "He's really sensitive, which is kind of good, but it's really hard to ride too. So, I made a bit change. I started running him in a snaffle two weeks ago at the Fizz Bomb and that has helped make him a little more forgiving for me. I had been running him in a short shank Neil Merrill. I tried a few others because he'd shake his head at me. We just decided to go to nothing."

She wanted to thank her husband Roger: "He rides the colts a lot with me and helps me so much," her sister-in-law Laura Nichols: "She's an amazing horsewoman and she's helped me with my horsemanship a lot," and Kent McCann, who helped her find a solution for riding the sensitive gelding.

<<SPECIAL>>

A Smooth Operraider

"I think I spent the month of August trying bits," laughs Roper Rally Futurity Champion Margaret Jones, who was searching for the right communication tool for Smooth Operraider ("Badger"). "He was so light. If we were getting by the first just a little bit, if I would go to pick him up, he would almost stop, roll back over the barrel or shake his head."

Thanks to the help of Rock Springs horseman Kent McCann, Jones found the right headgear for the sensitive gelding and the means for putting both horse and rider on the same page through dry work at speed.

McCann suggested putting a ring snaffle on Badger with a long martingale and tasked Jones with working the gelding at speed away from the pattern.

"I would do slow work on the barrels, but I didn't do any dry speed work," Jones explained. "He had me do a big, larger circle, really get him into some speed and then bring him into a small, almost barrel-sized turn. It was totally away from the barrels, just speeding up, coming back into my hands and making a nice turn."

Jones says the dry work and bit change has really helped her too. "Maybe it was more me than him too," she said. "I think it helped me be lighter too."

If I can ride him really gentle and not get over excited myself and keep my hands really quiet that really helps. It's just hard for to do when I'm competing under pressure. The snaffle is a little more forgiving so that was a great suggestion."

Chloe Gray's One Way Circle Drill

By Chloe Gray

The three key factors needed to make a fast barrel racing run is forward motion, rate and snap! Each horse has its own style, so I try to adjust my style, drills and exercises according to each horse to make the pattern as simple and comfortable for them as possible.

The "one way circle drill" works on all three factors—forward motion, rate and snap. This is also a great drill for keeping my riding correct through my seat, hands and body language. Others may call it by a different name or do it a different way, but here are some tips as to how I use it.

I have the barrel pattern set up as usual in the arena. I will start by staying on the outside rail and complete a full circle inward around the barrel and back to the rail and continue to make all the same direction turns traveling around the outside rail until I get the response I'm looking for and then will change directions and do all the barrels in the other direction.

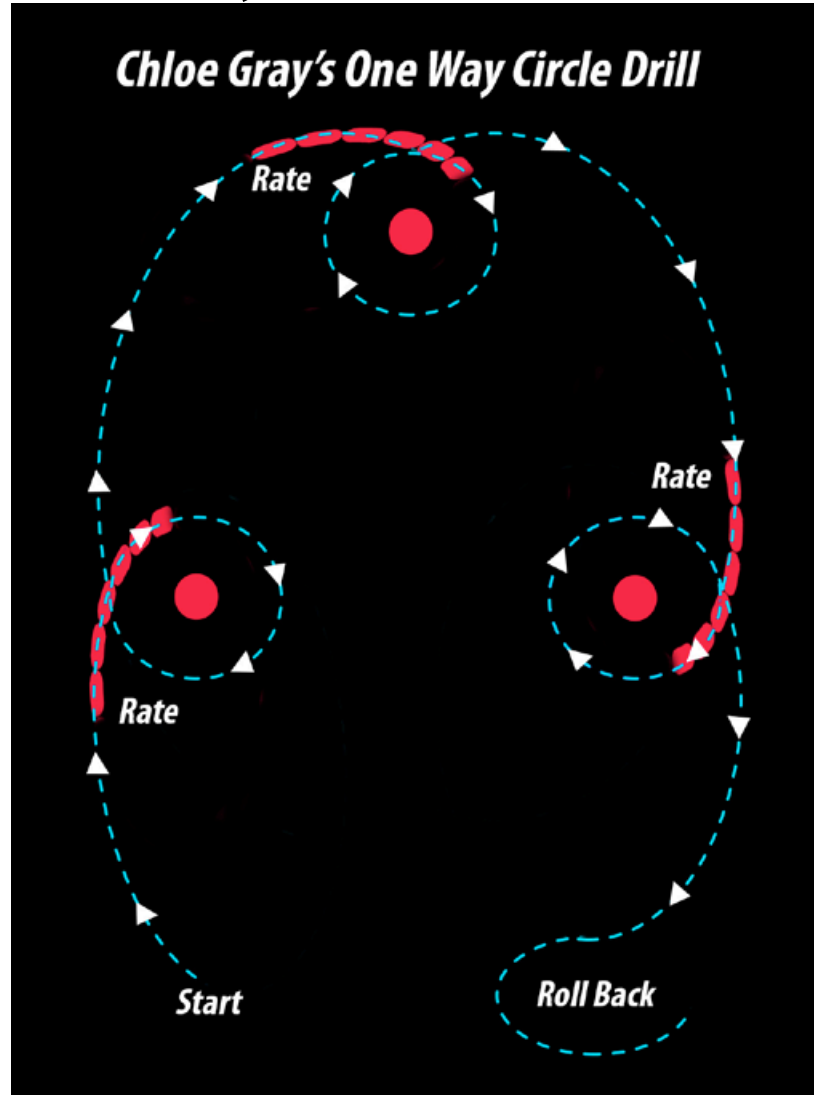

I make medium-size circles around each barrel. My goal for this drill is to keep good forward motion and keep the horse as smooth and collected as possible. I find this most beneficial at a lope.

I incorporate forward motion in this drill but also rate and snap, depending on the horse. I will start with a lope on the outside rail and when about two strides out from making a turn inwards around the barrel, I will transition to a slower lope or even a trot on some horses by using my seat, voice and hand cues (as I would in a competition run if I need collection and rate). This prepares the horse to take it down a notch and prepare for the turn.

As soon as I complete the circle I will push my seat and shoulders forward (also like I would in a competition run leaving a barrel) and pick back up a tad faster lope, making sure my lead is correct. This teaches the horse to leave strong as I continue to the next turn.

En route to the next turn, I keep the horse's shoulder and rib cage shaped and picked up to encourage good lift into my turns with forward motion. Also making sure the hip is traveling balanced up under the horse. It's important not to let the horse rush into the turns.

And last but not least, I work on the snap while I switch directions. After getting a good response one way, I will incorporate a good sharp correct roll back on the rail getting the horse to really engage its hind end and continuing through the drill in the opposite direction.

Molly Otto & Teasin Dat Guy Dominate at The Blitz

By Tanya Randall

Molly Otto and Teasin Dat Guy (“Chewy”), bred and owned by Katie Lindahl, collected $6,638 at The Blitz, held September 18-20 in Bowman, North Dakota. The Grand Forks, North Dakota, trainer and Chewy swept the futurity and won the American Semifinals Qualifier. Their weekend winnings pushed Teasin Dat Guy’s lifetime total to over $77k.

Otto also placed third in the futurity on Uknowmydaddyisslick, owned by Julee Daulton, placed in both opens on Sixappeal, also owned by Lindahl, and picked up an open check on No Lion Shes Flyin, a futurity horse, for total earnings of $10,753.

“They did a really great job,” said Otto. “The ground was awesome and it was really fun. The food was great too! I look forward to it every year.

While she’s stayed busy hauling to events in her region for many years, this is the first year Otto has traveled a little farther afield to some of the bigger events the sport has to offer. Barrel Racing Report took the chance to learn a little bit more about Otto’s training program that’s been so successful as of late.

Training out of Grand Forks poses a lot of challenges, the first and foremost being North Dakota winters.

“It gets really cold here,” laughed the mother of three: Sterling, 14, Rowdy, 11, and Blaisy, 4. “A few years ago, we only had nine days that were about 0 degrees, so it gets really cold and not fun where I live.”

She has a small 50’ x 75’ indoor pen where she works horses in the winter.

“A lot of times when I start horses, I’ll set up four barrels or one barrel, and just basically teach them how to turn a barrel, where to put their feet. Then I usually haul my horses to a friend’s. She has a bigger indoor—bigger than mine—and I can work them there and cruise them through the pattern.”

In the summer, she trains in an outdoor pen at her in-laws. “The ground is terrible!” she laughed. “Actually, the bad ground... sometimes its super frustrating, but at the same time it teaches them to stand up and where to place their feet. They learn really fast if they don’t get their feet underneath them they’re going to fall down!”

Otto doesn’t have access to a lot of jackpots to exhibition her colts, so it’s not something she prioritizes.

“I actually don’t really haul my young ones a lot to exhibition, maybe a couple of times in fall,” she said. “We do have a couple of local jackpots near us but they never seem to be when I can get to them because I’m usually at something else. The closest indoor pen is in Fargo, which is an hour from me. They only have a few winter jackpots in January and February. The rest of them are three to seven hours away, so my horses spend a lot of time in the trailer.” Otto’s horses are actually getting a lot of the seasoning to new places and conditions during the training process because she hauls out so much to train them.

“My horses get hauled a lot when they’re learning the pattern and stuff,” she said. “I think they get seasoned while learning because that’s all they do: get in the trailer and every time they show up somewhere they go around the barrels. Once they’re cruising through, I don’t do a lot of fast work at home, mostly just trotting and loping up and doing smooth transitions at the barrels or loping around the barrels, but I rarely run one through at home.”

Unlike a lot of trainers in futurity business that are getting their prospects as 2-year-olds, Otto usually gets hers in the summer before their futurity year. This year, however, she did get some a little earlier—in the spring.

“It’s kind of interesting because a lot of my clients don’t send their horses until the summer,” she said. “This year, I had quite a few this spring so that was really nice. Obviously, the earlier the better, but I don’t get too worried about it. It doesn’t take me long to get them going. This year was really busy so it was nice getting them a little bit earlier.”

While she’s had horses come to her at all different stages of their training, she prefers them to be broke enough not to buck, or if they’ve had more riding, to not hide their faces behind the bridle.

“I get a lot of horses at different levels,” she said. “Some are barely broke and I have to spend a lot of time on them. I don’t like to have to lunge one every day or worry that they’re going to buck me off. I want something that’s riding around decent that I can do some fine tuning stuff with. I don’t like one that wants to hide their face behind the bridle. That’s really frustrating to me. It’s really hard for me to get their heads up and want to go somewhere. That’s probably the only thing I’ve really not liked, but for the most part I can do with whatever I’m given.”

HEADIN' FOR HOME

by Sherry Morrison // Triple M (Mike Morrison Ministries)

I have been so blessed to be able to spend time with my grandson this summer. He helped us do a lot of work around this place AND he drove us everywhere.

He needed a certain amount of hours on his permit to be able to get his license. Usually it was him and me. I've gotten better over the years. My son Jake would tell you that I tended to hit him if I thought we were in danger!

Cody got a pass on that but obviously my techniques changed. I must have said a few things... a lot. But he hasn't forgotten them because the other day we jumped in the pickup and headed for town with ME driving. I didn't realize his ulterior motive until we backed out of a parking spot and he yelled, "WATCH YOUR FRONT! WATCH YOUR FRONT!" It was hysterical!

Guess I was a little paranoid about that. He doesn't twitch or flinch when he drives me so I guess he's not scarred for life. Reading or hearing something a lot to remember is from God as well.

Proverbs 4:20-27 reminds us to keep the Word of God in front of our eyes and in our hearts. For they are LIFE to those who find them and HEALTH to all our flesh. If we read and remember HIS direction to us and establish our ways on His word, we will stay out of harms way. A good place to be.

Mike and Sherry Morrison pastor "Church at the Barn" in Gillette, WY. They also travel to other areas ministering at barrel races, ranches, rodeos, churches and home Bible studies.
